Ladies on the Beach.
The Fatter, the Prouder.
The Roosevelt Plan.
Two Dwarfs are Married.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.

IF A TYPICAL Puritan ancestor could return and spend a morning at the edge of the ocean back of the Roney-Plaza Hotel in Miami Beach, it would be interesting to watch his face.

He would see ladies walking home from the beach, with their legs absolutely bare, up as high as physically possible, looking like Shanghai chickens with all the feathers pulled off, from the wings down.

He would see dear little ladies trotting in long pajamas or out and out "trousers," wearing sandals that show their bare feet, toe nails neatly painted red or purple, the hair at the other end dyed a brilliant gold, the face painted a bright pink, lips a dreadful red.

HE WOULD see hideous old men with rolls of fat lolling on the sand, with nothing on above the waist, broiling their bald heads in the violent actinic rays, a most dangerous proceeding.

He would note what has been observed a hundred times in moments of moral relaxation, and female expansion, that when women have passed a few generations really dressed, it delights them to get rid of the clothes and appear as nearly naked as possible.

THE STRANGE thing is that the fattest ladies seem most proud of their bare legs, each sometimes as much as eighteen inches wide a little way above the knee. They have a right to be proud, because fat legs mean preserved strength, which is required for motherhood.

Human beings are creatures of habit and established customs and they need to be. When they break away, they do strange things and become strange objects.

ONE PHILOSOPHER at Miami Beach, industriously gathering health, was smiling today, as he talked to Al Jolson. The smiling one is William Fox, whom you know in connection with moving pictures.

Says he:

"They absolutely kicked me out of the moving picture business, FORCED ME to take twenty million dollars in cash and $500,000 a year salary for a good many years. I had no choice in the matter, they just FORCED me."

His smile, absolutely genuine, as he says this, would annoy some of those that did the "forcing."

AN EARNEST correspondent, Mr. A. R. Wurtele, writes from Miami Beach to this innocent column,

"Is it not your duty to work out a complete 'Five Year Plan,' to give the bulk of our people some hope and something to tie to?"

Mr. Wurtele, with his letter, sends an excellent analysis of our condition.

An average of twenty plans for ending the depression and restoring prosperity reach this column each week. To add one to those plans would be superfluous.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT has one plan, already announced. At government expense the Tennessee Valley would be made over, reforestation in the highlands, flood control basins, huge water power development, reclamation of flooded bottom lands, elimination of unprofitable marginal lands from farm pursuits, back to the farm movement, improved navigation.

THE SUCCESS of this plan would be followed by similar plans in Ohio and elsewhere. If the Tennessee plan, which could hardly get started for a year, worked rapidly and well, it would employ 50,000 to 75,000 people.

That would not make a big hole in the twelve millions of unemployed. Some idea bigger than an engineering plan to hire a few thousands or hundreds of thousands, and put out a few more hundreds of millions of public money, is called for in this situation.

That there is any brain big enough to formulate the idea is doubtful. It must come of itself and possibly in some unpleasant way, after unpleasant experience.

EVERY "PLAN" involves more money to be shoveled out from public funds. And the government itself, in the first seven months of this fiscal year, finds itself with a deficit of one thousand, two hundred and seventy-one million dollars.

It is a rich country, with credit strong as ever. But already Mr. Rainey, of Illinois, a conservative by choice, says that inflation must come. We need a new idea, a big one, and courage to adopt it even if unpleasant.

AN ITEM in the news tells of two girls from Alabama, of the usual size, marrying two dwarfs, each less than three feet tall. The feeling of repulsion these marriages arouse in the average woman goes far back, to days when every cave lady wanted a man big enough to fight a bear if necessary, or throw a rock at the caveman from the other side of the valley.

But in days to come husbands three feet high may seem to women of that time like strange giants.

MEN HAVING less and less physical labor to do, only pushing buttons, may in the course of evolution become very small, like the male deep sea crab that lives under the flipper of its big wife, one hundred times his size.

Not now, nor in the next million years, but in some one of the hundreds of millions of

PRUSSIA'S DIET BALKS HITLER

Refuses Dissolution Demand of Nazi Chancellor

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The Prussian Diet, by a vote of 214 to 196, and the Diet triumvirate, by a vote of 2 to 1, declined today to bow to the deemand of Chancellor Hitler's cabinet that the Diet dissolve so a new election could be held coincidentally with the Reichstag election on March 5.

Only by a vote of the Diet or of the triumvirate, which includes the Diet president, the Premier of Prussia and the President of the State Council, can the Diet be dissolved.

Now it is up to the Department of Justice to think up another way of dissolving the Assembly.

The National Socialist newspaper Angriff asserted dissolution was assured irrespective of the action of the Diet or of the triumvirate.

TUMULTOUS SESSION

Hans Kerrl, National Socialist president of the Diet, terminated a tumultous session immediately after the vote, calling sarcastically to the Centris, Socialis and Communis benches:

"Gentlemen, I wish you the best for the future."

From the very outset today's meeting was disorderly. The National Socialist motion for dissolution was presented, each party was given one hour of debate and very quickly the Centrist-Communist-Socialist bloc announced it would oppose the project.

Karl Severing, Prussian minister of the interior, tried to speak, but the National Socialists howled him down. The Socialists raised a great cheer for him and the chairman, failing to restore order, suspended the session for 15 minutes.

Severing tried again when business was resumed, but the tumult increased and there was another suspension. When the meeting was called to order again Severing remained in his chair and the House proceeded with the vote amid noisy demonstrations by both sides.

Hitlerites Willing to Let Ex-Kaiser Return

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—The Nazi members of Adolf Hitler's government will gladly accord sanctuary to former Kaiser Wilhelm if he asks permission to return to Germany, Capt. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, air minister and president of the Reichstag, told International News Service today. Capt. Goering said:

"Strictly speaking, the ex-Kaiser's return is a purely domestic German affair.

"So far as I am concerned—and I dare say this reflects the opinion of the other Nazi members of the cabinet—we shall not ask the ex-Kaiser to return.

"But if he should ask permission to come back, we would be the last to refuse him sanctuary. It would not do any harm."

Mob Balks Farm Sale In Penna.

READING, Pa., Feb. 4.—(INS.)—An attorney, representing the mortgage holder at a sheriff's sale of livestock, near Topton, was driven from the premises by a crowd of more than 500 angry farmers, believed to be members of the United Farmers' Protective League, which has a strong following in Bucks County.

Ralph C. Body, the lawyer, was chased through the barnyard yesterday afternoon by farmers who shouted "Lawyers don't need horses" when he attempted to bid in some of the livestock for his client, who obtained a $332 judgment against Herbert Hoppes for failure to pay interest on the mortgage.

Sheriff H. J. Schlappig intervened, and Body was allowed to return, and an agreement was reached whereby William N. Miller, second mortgage holder, purchased the livestock. Sheriff Schlappig said today Miller had agreed to leave the livestock in Hoppes' possession.

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—One farmer was near death in a Sioux City (Ia.) hospital, and at least four others were suffering from gunshot wounds as debt-laden agriculturists today continued to look to legislatures and Congress for relief.

R. D. Markell, 68, of Elk Point, S. D., was seriously wounded and his two sons, Harry and Keath, were shot when they attempted to run a blockade of 100 pickets near Sioux City.

Nile Cochran, 39, of Moville, Ia., said by officials to have been one of the pickets, was being held for questioning after being treated for gunshot wounds, and at least one other unidentified farmer was known to have been shot.

The shooting occurred when the Markells attempted to transport 1,000 gallons of milk into Sioux City in defiance to a price agreement following the milk strike in Northwestern Iowa last fall.

Meanwhile, farm relief proposals were being discussed in the United States Senate and in several state legislatures.

TRIO SEIZED IN TROLLEY HOLDUP

Suspects Captured 25 Minutes After Robbery

Twenty-five minutes after three Negro bandits had held up and robbed the operator of a Troy Hill street car at its terminal in Lowrie street early today, North Side police had under arrest three suspects.

The robbers boarded the street car at Seventh street and Penn avenue and rode to the end of the line, waiting until all the other passengers had left the car. The robbery occurred at 2:40 a. m.

The suspects were held for investigation by the Detective Bureau at a hearing in North Side Police Court this morning. Attempts will be made to connect them with other robberies, police said.

The arrests were made by Capt. John Flavin and a squad who toured the North Side district in a radio automobile after receiving a report of the robbery from the car operator, Charles Woods, of near Millvale. The suspects were taken into custody in East Ohio street at the Thirtieth Street Bridge.

Unable to give a satisfactory account of their actions, the Negroes were searched, their pockets yielding a small amount of change, a woman's diamond ring, 58 street car tokens and a watch. Woods said the bandits had robbed him of a watch, $4.50 and $2 worth of tokens.

One of the suspects, James Stewart, 24, of 47 Fullerton street, lunged at Patrolman Jerry M. Dilworth, police said, attempting to strike him with the butt of a revolver. Stewart was subdued after a tussle in which he tossed his gun into the Allegheny river.

Stewart's companions are identified as James King, 24, of 1206 Gorman way, and Arthur Johnson, 28, of 313 Larimer avenue.

DASH HALTED AT DOORWAY OF LOCKUP

Find Victims Clinging To Car of Woman Returning From Ball

Speeding through a red light barricade at Federal and East Ohio streets early today, homeward bound from a ball, Miss Betty Benson, 24, of 223 Kennedy avenue, hit and injured two workmen repairing the street there, according to police.

Apparently out of control, the automobile careened across the torn up street on to the wide sidewalk and came to a stop at the door of Capt. Anthony Block's office at North Side Police Station, her two alleged victims clinging to the radiator of the machine.

Police said the girl, dressed in an evening gown, was en route to her home from a ball. She was driving an automobile which police said was owned by Al G. Slack, an artist, of 223 Kennedy avenue.

The injured men were Mike Summo, 40, of 7744 Fuerst way, and Steve Sofranko, of 2011 Howard street. Both were taken to Allegheny General Hospital, where it was said they suffered body bruises. They were employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and were making repairs at the intersection of Federal and East Ohio streets.

The automobile in its mad dash bounced over the torn-up thoroughfare, across the wide sidewalk, stopping almost at the top of a flight of stone steps leading to North Side Police Station.

Miss Benson was held charged with reckless driving and will be arraigned in Traffic Court today. North Side police took her to Allegheny General Hospital for examination, but she was not detained.

ROOSEVELT TO POST CONGRESS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—President-elect Roosevelt will consult with committees of the Senate and House during the forthcoming British debt negotiations to keep them advised of progress.

Mr. Roosevelt's intention to keep contact with Capitol Hill was disclosed just before he sailed for a 10-day fishing cruise. He still regards the actual negotiation of the debt settlements an executive function and will go ahead on his own in the talks with the foreign representatives.

Congress must ratify any agreement that comes out of the March conference, and Mr. Roosevelt intends to discuss the progress of the conversations with some kind of Congressional committee.

The yacht Nourmahal shoved away from port here today at 10:05 a. m.

Alighting from a special train that bore him from the "Little White House" at Warm Springs, Ga., the President-elect immediately set out upon a short sightseeing tour of the city, and then proceeded to Hemming park in the downtown section for a brief address.

GANDHI'S WIFE JAILED AGAIN

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mohandas K. Gandhi, wife of the Mahatma Gandhi, was arrested today at the village of Ras.

The charge against her has not yet been made public. This is the third time she has been arrested in 13 months.

Mrs. Gandhi left Ahmedabad two days ago for the Gujerat interior with a group of women followers with the avowed intention of organizing women's nationalist congress demonstrations.

Mrs. Gandhi has been an active leader in her husband's campaign against British rule in India.

Her husband has been in jail near Poona more than a year for refusing to call off his disobedience campaign.

New Trial Sought For Poison Plotters

A motion for a new trial for Mrs. Anna Allas and Mrs. Mary Chalfa, convicted of first degree murder in the Munhall "poison plot" case, was filed today by their counsel. They face life sentences in connection with the death of Steyhen Allas, 12, stepson of Mrs. Allas.

Attorney Louis Little claimed the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

Margot Asquith Forced To Sell Her Estate

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Margot Asquith, the Countess of Oxford and the widow of the late Prime Minister Herbert H. Asquith, has been forced to sell her beautiful country home in Berkshire.

The Countess admitted her present circumstances were difficult, but she was not at all unhappy today about her fate. She said only lack of means to retain her beloved home—"The Wharf," at Sutton Courtenay—induced her to sell it.

In an interview in the Evening Standard, she said:

"But for my writings and small annuities I would have had to abandon my London house, too. It is impossible for anyone to realize how difficult it is, after living on the scale I have done for so many years.

"My rich friends are dead and my present friends would help me if they could, but they cannot. However, I still have their love and prize it more than any financial assistance."

The Premier's widow said she sold the country home "for a mere song" because of the burden of taxation and the fall in dividends from securities.

Referring to her writings, the countess said:

"I was recently offered £3,000 (about $10,200) yearly by an American newspaper to write about my intimate friends, but I refused."

'CHUCK RIGHT, SNOW FLIES

The Punxsutawney ground hog and all of his numerous relatives were chuckling today, as a blanket of snow covered Western Pennsylvania to vindicate the weather seer's prediction of six more weeks of winter weather.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman today said the snow was general throughout the Ohio Valley and the mountains. He said the snow would continue tonight and probably tomorrow, with the mercury dropping to 20 tonight.

Babe Living With Neck Broken

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—A 17-month-old boy, his neck broken, lies in a hospital crib today, encased in a plaster cast.

Dr. Thomas Wheeldon, of Richmond, says the child, Richard Perdue, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Perdue, of Brushfork, will probably recover.

Physicians were called by the child's parents after Richard, reaching up to a table, overturned a tub of cold water on himself, the tub striking his head.

Convulsions developed and continued. X-ray pictures revealed a double fracture of the bone supporting the head.

Robbers Seek Spats, Loot Store of $40

Two bandits held up the Father & Son shoe store, at 6252 Franks-town avenue, and escaped after looting the cash register of $40 last night. Ben Ehrenworth, the manager, told police the robbers asked for a pair of spats when they entered. As he reached for the spats one of the men pointed a revolver and forced him to the rear of the store while his accomplice rifled the register.

2 FILM STARS SNOWBOUND

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 3.—(AP.)—Suffering from exposure and partial snow blindness, George Brent, screen actor, and his actress wife, Ruth Chatterton, returned home here today and told of having been snowbound three days in their isolated cabin near Lake Arrowhead, mountain resort, 80 miles east of here.

They said they traveled five miles on snowshoes to a place where they could get a motar car to return home.

Brent said he left the cabin and waded snow for three miles to get a Mexican man to help him break a trail to the cabin and that he and Miss Chatterton then donned snowshoes and returned the three miles, plus two more to the car.

The actress expects to be confined at home several days, but Brent suffered only slightly from a touch of snow blindness.

PAUL MELLON TO SEE DAD

Paul Mellon, son of Ambassador A. W. Mellon, sailed last night on the Aquatania for England, where he will remain until his father returns to the United States, probably late in March.

It was said here the Ambassador's son plans to travel in the British Isles during his eight or nine weeks' visit. He was accompanied by Ernest Ridsdale, former Mellon butler. He will accompany his father back to the United States.

Buster Keaton Ill, Retires From Films

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The frozen-faced comedian of the films, Buster Keaton, has announced his temporary retirement from the screen because of a breakdown in health.

Romance of Carnegie's Rise to Be Published

Andrew Carnegie, who helped make Pittsburgh rich, and who in turn enriched the city and its environs, will reappear to Pittsburghers in a story of his life and works.

For Burton J. Henrick's recent biography of the iron king, authorized by Mrs. Carnegie and taken from the files, letters and stories of the late philanthropist's friends, will be printed in the Sun-Telegraph, starting next Tuesday.

There will be daily installments in succeeding issues. In the story the fascinating rise of a poor weaver's son, an immigrant from Scotland, to become one of the richest men in the world and a colleague of kings, is told with simplicity and sympathy.

The biography is the first authorized one of the late Pittsburgher, who came here in 1848—a boy. He saw it a struggling little town, and his boyish eyes must have widened, if he visioned what his "bridge making mills" would become in 1901—a half century later. Then he sold them for $600,000,000, a tidy sum even for Carnegie.

Much that is vital in the man is portrayed on the pages of the biography, full of Pittsburgh and Pittsburgh names, to be transferred to the columns of the Sun-Telegraph. The story begins Tuesday.

ALLIED BOARDS JOIN CITIZEN COMMITTEE AGAINST COYNE

FIGHT SPURRED ON SENATOR'S 'BOSS' ROLE

Barstow Announces Action of Trade, Civic Alliance

The Allied Boards of Trade, comprising 40 civic and community organizations, today had joined forces with the Citizens' Committee, foe of Mayor Charles H. Kline, in its new attack upon the political influence of State Senator James J. Coyne.

The Allied Board at its weekly meeting yesterday, commended the Citizens' Committee in its demands upon Senator Coyne change his attitude to legislation affecting Pittsburgh and to cease attempts to throw the Board of Public Education back into politics. President Harry Barstow said:

"We heartily approve and support the definite move to stop the pernicious activities of some of the politicians from this end of the state, who are attempting not only to kill off desirable legislation in the interests of the people of Allegheny County, but who have been proposing and encouraging Legislation which is absolutely adverse to the taxpayers' and citizens' interests."

The Citizens' Committee which was active in the investigation and prosecution of Kline's administration, served notice upon Senator Coyne "that you will ultimately be held to account for your political actions" in letters to the Senator and to Republican State Chairman Edward Martin.

Coyne, in replying to the committee, said:

"Im going to lead the course I think is right and decent. I know that will please my friends; my enemies I never worry about."

'JIGSAW' DEATH SUSPECTS HELD FOR CORONER

Youth Implicated in Confession Found At Bus Station

Two alleged "jigsaw puzzle gunmen" were turned over to the coroner today charged with the murder of Charles F. Huber, Sr., Paulson avenue druggist.

The two men, Abe Liebman, 19, of 42 Reed street, and John Juzensky, 19, alias John Kurcheck, of 32 Vine street, were held by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court after Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd said he had obtained a confession from Liebman which implicated Kuzensky.

A brother, Joseph Kuzensky, 16, of 32 Vine street, and Charles Capezzi, 19, of 27 Vine street, were discharged by Rothenberg.

TAKEN AT TERMINAL

John Kuzensky was captured several hours after Liebman's confession, while waiting in the doorway of a Liberty avenue bus terminal.

According to Inspector Boyd, Liebman has confessed that he and Kuzensky attempted to hold up the Huber pharmacy, 560 Paulson avenue, Wednesday night. In his confession, Liebman is alleged to have stated that in a scuffle for the possession of the revolver his gun was accidentlly discharged, the bullet striking the elder Huber. He stated that Kuzensky was present, Boyd declared.

Accordig to Lieut. Frank Ferris of the Homecide Squad, the two men are responsible for at least a dozen robberies in Pittsburgh, most of them drug stores.

In the Ruber holdup a son, Henry G. Huber was wounded in the hand. The bandits had purchased a set or JOGsaw pubbefore attempting a robbery.

Liebman was captured Thursday night by Capts. Bernard Kirley and Philip Senneway, of the East End Police Station, and the alleged murder confession was obtained by Inspector Boyd. Liebman said he threw his pistol into the Monongahela River from the Twenty-second Street Bridge after the fatal holdup, but Kuzensky revealed it had been hidden in the paddling of a couch in the basement of a vacant house at 30 Vine street, Boyd asserted.

The gun Kuzensky carried was stolen in the holdup of the Lee pharmacy, 2338 Carson street, January 19, according to the detectives. Liebman also admitted holding up the Jackson pharmacy, 901 North St. Clair street, Monday night.

Girl 'Reports' Theft Of Purse to Mayor

MISS FLORENCE ETHRIDGE

Klines Give Aid as Victim Tells of Holdup

When a purse-snatcher robbed Miss Florence Ethridge, of 5722 Walnut street, and eluded her after a chase of more than a block at Elmer street and Negley avenue, she ran to the parked automobile of Mayor Charles H. Kline and appealed for help last night.

The Mayor and Mrs. Kline were entering the automobile when Miss Ethridge approached the chauffeur and apprised him of the robbery. The Mayor invited Miss Ethridge into the car and ordered the chauffeur to drive to Engine Company No. 28, Filbert and Elmer street, from where the theft was reported to police. Thanking the Klines for their kindness, Miss Ethridge gave a description to the police.

She said:

"The man alighted from the street car with me at Negley and Ellsworth avenues and followed me to Elmer street. He shoved me and then snatched my purse containing $7. He probably saw the cash when I opened my purse and reached for a token in the car.

"After he grabbed my purse I gave chase, but he ran down the block and vanished between two houses."

Miss Ethridge is employed as a clerk in a downtown department store.

RECOUNT OF 27 DISTRICTS AIM OF BAR

County Ballot Boxes Under Lock, Ready For Inspection

Allegheny County's post-election warfare was opened on a new front today, with arrangements going forward for a recount of 27 ballot boxes petitioned by the Election Frauds Committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

E. Lowry Humes, chairman of the committee, presented the petitions late yesterday before Common Pleas Judge John P. Egan and posted $1,350 as required by law.

Meanwhile the work of collecting and centralizing all of the county's ballot boxes in the subbasement of the new County Office Building, upon a court order granted by Judge James R. Macfarlane, had been completed.

ACTION AWAITED

More than 3,000 boxes were piled high behind locked doors awaiting developments in the activities of county investigators and federal agents working under Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh. The federal men are interested in the election of City Councilman Michael Muldowney over Mrs. Anna Felix in the Thirty-second Congressional District, and that of Twing Brooks over Congressman Edmund F. Erk, in the Thirtieth Congressional District.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced his office would co-operate with the Bar Association's committee in its recount. He said results of the recount would be certified to his office and that County Detective David Drexler, ballot expert, would observe the proceedings for his office.

DISTRICTS LISTED

The districts listed in Attorney Humes' petitions were: Third Ward, Second and Ninth Districts; Fourth Ward, First, Fifth, Eighth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth Districts; Tenth Ward, Twelfth and Thirteenth Districts; Fifteenth Ward, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fourteenth and Sixteenth Districts; Twenty-fifth Ward, Fourth District; Twenty-Seventh Ward, Second and Ninth Districts, and Thirty-first Ward, Seventh District.

Scores of irregularities in the keeping of ballot boxes by Justices of the Peace and Aldermen were reported by county investigators who collected them.

They declared the contents of the box from the Tenth District Fourth Ward, was missing. The box was received from the office of Alderman Louis Wicks, Oakland avenue, in a district considered to be a Muldowne stronghold.

LEAGUE DENIES LINK TO COYNE

That the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League has any affiliation with Senator James J. Coyne has been denied by I. Leonard Aronson, president of the league.

Aronson, addressing a league meeting of about 250 yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce, declared against an elective school board, favored by Coyne, and for the elimination of the office of County Delinquent Tax Collector.

The decision to file a bill of equity to set an 8-mill limit on the school tax was forced on the league by the attitude of the Board of Public Education, Aronson declared.

The bill was filed yesterday in Common Pleas Court by three taxpayers, Frank S. Delp, Frank E. Shaughnessy and Thomas F. Breen.

Aronson praised the work of the citizens' committee on business and financial procedure appointed by Marcus Aaron, president of the school board. The citizens' group followed many suggestions made by the league when it sought tax reduction for 1934, Aronson said.

Dwelling Rating Asked for Building

The Acme Land and Building Company, owner of the Acme Hotel at 808-10 Second avenue, has asked the Zoning Board of Appeals to change the classification of the building at 808 to that of a seven-family dwelling.

Recently the Zoning Board refused the property a hotel rating. The buildings are used as rooming houses for employes of a window cleaning company.

Today

years ahead of us, man, with a concentrated powerful brain, might well shrink to the size of an ear of corn. The human race might be made up of blonde women, seven feet tall, each carrying about a husband in a tiny cage, attached to her wrist.

This has happened often in the animal kingdom. The male spider sometimes is a tiny nothing, compared with his fierce wife. And often she eats him.

CHAMBER BACKS MANAGER BILL

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to approve the State Senate bill to enable cities of the second-class to adopt the city manager plan of government with proportional representation, and urged that the bill be enacted. The chamber previously had indorsed the principle of city manager legislation.

At the recommendation of the state legislation committee the board adopted a resolution that the chamber, while approving the principle embodied in House bills to reduce rates of interest on loans to individuals up to $300, recommends that before such law be enacted, hearings be held by a House committee to arrive at some equitable rate of interest based upon present conditions and to avoid radical reductions which might seriously affect loaning concerns.

The committee submitted a recommendation which was adopted by the board, that the chamber withhold approval from old age pension proposals until provision is made for administration of the funds and decision reached on terms under which pensions should be pro-rated.

The board also voted to oppose a bill which provides that school visitors be elected.

Capture Schoolboy In Extortion Plot

EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Blair Miller, 15, high school youth, was revealed today as the author of extortion notes which were signed, "The Scarlet Caracul."

Police trapped the youth as he was picking up a package of money he had demanded of Mrs. Samuel J. Lang, wife of the physician to the Northwestern University football team.

Young Miller was turned over to his father, who explained that the youth had been reading too many detective stories.

Frenchman Admits Espionage in Italy

ROME, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—A term of 15 years in prison was demanded by the public prosecutor today for Charles Eydoux, French engineer, on trial before a special tribunal for defense of the state on charges of military espionage.

Ten years' imprisonment was likewise demanded for his secretary, Mlle. Georgette Bonnefond, accused with him of mapping military roads in Northern Italy. The requests for the sentence followed a dramatic confession made by Eydoux from the witness stand.

Woman Squire's Town Invaded by Park Men

Alleged 'Numbers' Den Near Morgan Office Closed

The Sewickley territory of Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan's roving constables was invaded by District Attorney Andrew T. Park's county detectives yesterday, and two alleged numbers resorts, one acrooss the street from the squire, were raided.

The raids came on the heels of the raid by Mrs. Morgan's constables on the Crystal Smoke Shop, an alleged Hill district numbers resort, yesterday.

The place across from Squire Morgan's—504 Beaver street—was described as a big gambling house by detectives, who reported they surprised 150 Negroes waiting for the day's number. Dice and poker tables found on the second floor and numbers paraphernia were confiscated, detectives reported.

They arrested two Negroes, F. C. Gould and Charles Jackson, both of whom were to be arraigned before Justice of the Peace C. P. Paschold, of Edgeworth, on charges of maintaining a lottery.

Following the raid, Frank Ritz and his detectives went to a confectionery at 404 Beaver street, arrested the alleged proprietor, Frank Maculso, and seized numbers slips and other alleged evidence, they said.

Detectives said they forced a steel door of an alleged speakeasy in the 4700 block Liberty avenue last night and seized a quantity of intoxicants. Two-score guests fled as the detectives entered, they said.

'Pretty Boy' Floyd Follower Seized

WICHITA, Kan., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Twelve officers surrounded the home of George Ford at Eldorado, Kan., and without firing of a shot, forced the surrender of four gunmen sought for bank robbery, and other major crimes in the southwest.

The prisoners included, police said, Lonnie Poe, 32, a lieutenant of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma outlaw, and Joe Milan, 28, member of the once notorious Kimes gang.

Cable Splicer Wins Phone Sales Contest

A cable splicer, O. G. Scheidler, was proved the leading "amateur" salesman in the Pittsburgh branch of the Bell Telephone Company, with the announcement today, of winners in the 1932 contest for company employes. Scheidler sold 346 telephones, an average of almost one a day, in the competition from which regular salesmen were excluded.

JAPS REPULSE CHINESE AGAIN

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The Japanese military headquarters here reported its garrison at Chiumenkow, in the Great Wall of China, repulsed the fifth Chinese attack in eight days after three hours of desperate fighting early today. Heavy Chinese losses were reported.

The Rengo (Japanese) News Agency said Chinese troops in the Shihmenchai district, westward from Chiumenkow, were recently reinforced by two of Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang's bridages.

With the aid of these regular troops dispatched by the North China military ruler, the Chinese forces were reported trying enveloping tactics by attacking the Japanese garrison from the East, North and West. Further Chinese assaults were expected.

Chiumenkow, a main coastal passage through the Great Wall into the Chinese Province of Jehol, was captured by the Japanese a week after the fall of Shanhaikwan, the Chinese border city, 12 miles southward.

Jobless Resurfacing Westmoreland Road

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 4.—A force of 20 men employed by the Westmoreland County Emergency Relief Board has begun resurfacing the Lynn Run road near Rector. The road is much used during the summer by tourists traveling to the Laurel Hill summit and to the state trout hatchery.

Heloise E. Hersey, School Head, Dies

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Miss Heloise E. Hersey, 78, literary figure of Boston, died yesterday. For many years she conducted a private school for girls on Beacon Hill and, although it was discontinued in 1930, it was so popular its graduates still maintain an association known as "Miss Hersey's Girls."

FRENCH BUDGET PLANS PUSHED

PARIS, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Premier Edouard Daladier, having a substantial indorsement from the Chamber of Deputies, proceeded speedily today to carry out his plans for balancing the budget.

Thanks to the toleration of the Socialists and the vigorous support of former Premier Edouard Herriot, Daladier was able to go ahead.

A rallying speech by Herriot, who was overthrown on the debts issue early in December, caused the strongest impression during debate preceding the 370-to-200 vote of confidence, particularly on the Center parties.

Many deputies interpreted it as a step toward a Left and Center coalition, without the Socialists. The three cabinets of the past eight months—those of Herriot, Paul-Boncour and Daladier—were supported by a Left bloc including mainly the Radical Socialists and Socialists.

FRANCE BACKS BRITISH STAND

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Semi-official indication today had been given that Paris had joined London in unqualifiedly indorsing British Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain's assertion that the United States must cut war debts without expecting anything in return.

Whole-heartedly approving Chamberlain's utterances, a leading editorial in Le Temps, regarded as semi-official spokesman for the government, says:

"Chamberlain's declarations should make Americans think, for they constitute firm replies to all arguments on the other side of the Atlantic in favor of a settlement which might assure America immediate advantages, but which would not solve the problem of a final clearing up of world economy."

6,000 Passengers At Port in 6 Months

A report being prepared by Hal R. Bazley, director of the City-County Airport, for presentation to County Commissioners, shows that during the final half of last year, 6,000 airline passengers entered and left the port.

In addition 504 passengers visited the airport in privately-owned planes, and 8,457 persons bought passage in sight-seeing planes. Transport planes made 2,165 landings and takeoffs during the six months.

NAIL IMPRINTS SLAYING CLUE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—A man with the imprint of finger nails on his face was hunted in the subways and the smoke-filled dens of the underworld today as hundreds of policemen sought to solve the brutal slaying of Mary Helen O'Connor, 15-year-old schoolgirl.

Screeching radio cars rushed this morning to the Woodlawn Avenue Station of the subway on a tip the man was riding a train. The guards, however, said they had not seen him.

The girl's body, smashed in what apparently had been a terrible struggle, was found Thursday in woods at Massapequa, L. I. She left her Brooklyn home January 27 to visit a friend in Floral Park and never reached there.

The theory that she was captured by a white slave gang and murdered to prevent her from giving evidence was held by some Long Island police. Others inclined to the belief the killer was a psychopath.

Put Tie on Railroad Tracks, Gets Term

MANSFIELD, O., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Frank Weinert, 54, McKeesport, Pa., was sentenced to serve 1 to 10 years in prison yesterday after he pleaded guilty to a charge that he placed a tie across the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks near Belleville.

Judge C. H. Huston asked Weinert whether he preferred to serve the term in the county jail or in the Ohio Penitentiary. He chose the penitentiary.

County Board Demands Living Wage for Labor

Contractors doing work for Allegheny County will not be permitted to pay starvation wages to their laborers, the County Commissioners said today, after they had ordered their new Director of Public Works, Thomas O. Hasley, to keep strict watch on firms engaged on county projects.

Chairman C. C. McGovern said:

"We know some contractors pay as low as a $1.50 a day for laborers. Our engineers figure our estimates on the basis of 50 cents per hour for laborers and we want you to see that the contractors keep as near this wage as possible. We don't want anyone doing our work dropping to $1.50 a day."

Fifty cents an hour for five eight-hour days each week would bring a pay of $20 a week. This amount, McGovern said, is low enough for the laborers who often pay for transportation from considerable distances to their jobs, and support large families.

McGovern instructed Hasley to discuss the wage question with contractors before jobs are awarded. It was said that while no written agreement could be obtained on wages to be paid, there could be a verbal understanding.

School Racketeering Declared New Peril

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Racketeering has invaded the class room, with the result that the stability of modern civilization is being undermined, according to Dr. Harold O. Rugg, of Columbia University. He continued:

"Children of the high schools of New York are organizing themselves for racketeering. They have their clubs and wear badges. They wear certain styles of clothes. They are learning to live off society without working.

"With civilization approaching disintegration, education in the larger sense is the only sure route to reconstruction; all other devices are makeshifts and palliatives."

Dr. Rugg spoke yesterday before the Progressive Education Association, addressing more than 1,000 delegates from the Middle Atlantic States. He said:

"The graduate of gangland is sometimes the tutor of the schoolroom racket."

Willard W. Beatty, superintendent of schools in Bronxville, N. Y., urged the teachers to participate in politics as the way to "build a new education for a new America."

Dr. Jesse Holmes, of Swarthmore College, urged that a daily newspaper be made part of each pupil's course.

DORIS MERCER KRESGE WEDS PRINCE IN PARIS MOSQUE

CUBAN BATTLES ESCORT OVER LILI DAMITA

Introduction Spurned, Pint-Size Boxer Slugs Yale Man

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—A pugnacious, pint-size Cuban prizefighter who wanted to be introduced to Lili Damita so much that he battled her 200-pound escort, Earl E. T. Smith, for the honor, gave Havana five minutes of excitement that it is still talking about.

The story of the fight over the film actress, which occurred in the Grand Casino Nacional on Sunday night, was told last night by passengers who returned on the North German Lloyd liner Columbus from a 12-day cruise.

Miss Damita and the socially prominent Sydney Smith, brother of Earl, were among those who sailed on the liner when it left New York. In Havana, Sydney took Miss Damita to meet his brother, Earl, who married Consuelo Vanderbilt in 1926. The three had dinner together and later the screen actress and Earl Smith went to the casino.

FIST FIGHT BEGINS

They were at the bar at midnight when two Cubans, one of them the boxer, came up. The pugilist slapped Smith on the back and asked to be presented to Miss Damita. Smith waved him away. The other came back insisting. This time Smith said:

"Don't bother me."

Incensed, the Cuban began swinging his fists. Smith, who learned about boxing at Yale, put up his hands and began sparring. Miss Damita continued to lean against the bar, watching the flying fists with interest.

The bartenders, not so blase, made haste to clear the glasses off the bar, before anyone might start throwing them. Most of the hundred persons in the bar tried to leave the room for the casino proper. Their rush was met by that of the crowd in the casino, who wanted to see the battle.

CUBAN FLOORS ONE

One of the passengers from the Columbus decided to take a hand in the fight at that moment. He stepped in and promptly went sprawling from a blow from the Cuban.

At this, witnesses said, Smith began fighting in earnest, but before any damage had been done officials of the casino interfered and separated the combatants.

Smith and Miss Damita left the casino under the escort of a police inspector and two patrolman, who accompanied them to protect them from possible renewal of the fight by friends of the Cuban.

Neither the Smiths nor Miss Damita returned to New York on the Columbus, which docked Thursday.

ALOHA ACCUSES GUY IN YACHT DEATH TRIAL

Trousered Beauty Tells Of Strange Document Linked to Murder

International News Service.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Feb. 4.—A strange document written in Spanish became the focal point today in the trial of young William J. Guy, handsome soldier of fortune, charged with the mysterious murder of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, globe trotter, adventurer and seeker of the bizarre in life.

Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, youthful steel nerved "rhinestone widow" of the slain adventurer, told the jury that the document, which Wanderwell always carried in his wallet, had been missing since Wanderwell was shot through the back by a lurking assassin on the mystic yacht Carma the night of December 5.

The document, Mrs. Wanderwell testified, was given by Guy to Wanderwell in 1931, and declared Guy's intention of no longer following Wanderwell as leader of an expedition in South America.

The state contended that Guy killed Wanderwell to obtain the document, which he feared would be used to prevent him from collecting money he charged Wanderwell owed him.

In a uniform that included whipcord trousers, a jaunty blue tam-o'-shanter hat, a khaki vest and military boots, the beautiful widow created a stir as she told of threats she said Guy had made against her husband.

Once, in Hollywood, she testified, she heard her husband call for help and entering his hotel room found Guy there with Wanderwell, who said:

"Guy attacked me in an effort to get money."

Now She's a Princess

MRS. DORIS MERCER KRESGE . . SHE MARRIED PRINCE FARID

The divorced Mrs. Kresge, former Pittsburgh girl today in Paris the bride of Prince Farid Khan Sadry, a Persian.

NOBLE OF OLD PERSIAN LINE BRIDEGROOM

Marriage Third for Former Pittsburgh Divorcee

International News Service.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The former Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, divorced wife of the founder of the American five and 10-cent store chain, married Prince Farid Khan Sadry, of Persia, on January 30, officials of the Persian legation disclosed today.

The couple, it was said, is now on a wedding trip in Egypt. The Persian charge d'affaires was present at the wedding ceremony as a witness. The Prince and Mrs. Kresge were married in the Moslem Mosque of Paris.

CIVIL CEREMONY

The Princess, who divorced Sebastian S. Kresge five years ago, has been living on the Riviera since that time. The bridegroom, her third husband, is the great grandson of the Persian grand chancellor who brought the late Kadjar dynasty to the throne of Persia.

Before the ceremony in the Moslem Mosque, a civil marriage ceremony was performed. It was reported the Prince's bride will not embrace his religion.

PITTSBURGHER'S DAUGHTER

The former Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge is the daughter of former Police Capt. George A. Mercer, of the Pittsburgh police bureau, one-time partner of Andrew Carnegie.

She is a niece of J. Carson Mercer, former Allegheny County Commissioner and a sister of George Mercer, once a deputy coroner in Allegheny County.

She was once the wife of Percival D. Harden, magazine publisher, who ended his life in a New York hotel a short time after they had been divorced. Harden was born in Wheeling, W. Va.

Her second venture in matrimony was with S. S. Kresge, operator of the 5 and 10-cent stores. She was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in the New York State Supreme Court February 18, 1928, the decree being made final three months later. In April, 1928, Mrs. Kresge characterized as "ludicrous" Kresge's charge made in a divorce action in Detroit that she demanded $10,000,000 to bear him a child.

BALFOUR TO BE FETED HERE

Financial and industrial leaders of Pittsburgh will be hosts to James Moncrieff Balfour, head of three of Britain's largest investment trusts, on an inspection tour of Pittsburgh Monday.

Mr. Balfour, accompanied by his son and banking associate, Hugh Balfour, John W. Barriger, III, railroad analyst, and George Bebes, Philadelphia branch manager of the Bullock banking house, will arrive by special train. A luncheon will be held at the Duquesne Club.

J. C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, will be host at a dinner in the Pittsburgh Club with 150 business leaders attending.

Walker Sued for Unpaid Hotel Bill On Mooney Trip

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The Daily News says James J. Walker, former Mayor, is being sued on a $2,079.07 hotel bill in connection with his 1931 trip to San Francisco to argue for Tom Mooney's release.

A Supreme Court Justice authorized an attorney for the Crocker Hotel Company, which operates the St. Francis in San Francisco, to nail a copy of the summons and complaint on the front door of the Walker home here. Walker is in Europe.

The allegation is that Walker left San Francisco without paying the hotel bill.

FIGHT OUSTER OF SECT CHIEF

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 4.—(INS.)—In a last desperate attempt to prevent deportation of Peter Virigen, chief of the Doukhobor religio-mystic sect of Western Canada, to Russia, a writ of habeas corpus was sought today in Supreme Court here.

The writ was to be asked by an attorney engaged by representatives of the sect expected here by plane from Boston.

Virigen's followers flew from Winnipeg via Chicago and Newark to halt the deportation proceedings before their chieftain could be placed aboard an outbound steamer.

Virigen was taken from a train five miles outside the city last night and brought here by a detachment of mounted police.

SOVIET SCORED BY COUNTESS

NEWTOWN SQUARE, Pa., Feb. 4—(AP.)—Parlor Bolsheviks, in the opinion of Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, simply "don't understand" when they refer to Soviet Russia as a paradise for workers.

On a run-down Pennsylvania farm she occupies rent-free, the countess lives in striking contrast to the Russian estate on which her father, Count Leo Tolstoy, did much of his writing.

Sandwiched between hours on the lecture platform and others spent in writing, she finds time for many simple farm tasks—milking, churning, feeding chickens and even chopping wood. She said:

"I won't cry if your capitalist has it worse. He has had his day, but your workers, if they believe that, I will cry. It is your parlor bolsheviks, they do not understand. Russia has drifted away from socialism, even from Bolshevism. Russian workers are in worse slavery now than ever before."

Weather Conditions.

A trough of low pressure extends from the lakes southward to the South Atlantic coast, with centers over the lakes (Parry Sound, Ont., 29.68 inches) and near Charleston, S. C., 29.78 inches). This distribution of pressure is causing light rains or snow over most of the area in the Mississippi Valley and eastward to the coast, while another low central over North Dakota (Williston, 29.76 inches), is causing light snows over the Dakotas. Pressure is relatively high over Saskatchewan (Prince Albert, 30.22 inches, and quite high over the plateau (Winnemucca, Nev., 30.72 inches). It is much colder in the Upper Mississippi Valley and eastern plains, where tempratures range between zero and 24 below zero in the states and 40 degrees below zero at Winnipeg. It is warmer over the western portion of the Dakotas and the Northern Rocky Mountains.

SLEUTHS DUPED BY EDSEL FORD

DETROIT, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—Two constables, seeking to serve a subpena on Edsel Ford, were led a merry 80-mile an hour chase down Lake Shore drive by a "double" dressed in the Ford Motor Company president's clothes.

After refusing to be fooled by departure of several "dummy" cars from the Ford estate, Constables Andrew and Clayton Phillips, waiting in ambush with a fast automobile, yesterday gave chase to a big limousine.

Overhauling it after a mad race, they found a servant attired in Edsel Ford's conspicuous fur coat. The motor magnate meanwhile had departed in another machine.

Subpenas calling upon both Henry and Edsel Ford to testify, by deposition, in a civil suit now pending at Philadelphia, were issued yesterday.

SEEK SUSPECT IN SHOOTING

A Negro, who wounded Harry Margol, 27, in the left shoulder after a shot he had fired missed Max Port, in the latter's meat market, 2179 Webster avenue, last night, was being sought by Center Avenue police today.

The Negro, formerly employed in the market, walked in and demanded money which he claimed was due for past services, according to police. Port refused, saying he owed him nothing and ordered him out of the store. The shooting followed.

Magol, a clerk in the market, was taken to Passavant Hospital.

MAY TURN OVER COYNE TODAY

John Coyne, Jr., 22, will be turned over to the Coroner probably today in connection with the murder of his stepmother, Mrs. Irene Carbert Coyne, 19, in their home, 3424½ Ward street, Thursday night, according to homicide detectives. After shooting his stepmother, Coyne beat his father on the head with a hammer, the detectives said.

Coyne was in custody of the detectives after being held for court in Oakland Police Court on an assault and battery charge. Young Coyne came to Pittsburgh from Detroit by airplane when he learned his 66-year-old father was marrying Miss Carbert. Arriving at the house five hours after the wedding ceremony, he obtained his father's rifle and shot the young bride and then beat his father, the detectives said. The father, suffering a possible skull fracture, was in Mercy Hospital.

To the detectives Coyne calmly related the details of the killing, they said.

PROBE HOSPITAL FIRE KILLING 8

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Stirred to action by the tragic Ridgecliffe sanitarium fire, officials moved today to improve conditions in similar institutions while still seeking the cause of the blaze.

A theory of incendiarism advanced even before the bodies of eight women psychopathic patients were removed from the ruins yesterday was dismissed as unfounded by Val Hafner, district state fire marshal.

He said either defective electric wiring or an overheated furnace flue probably caused the blaze, but declined to explain his purpose in hurriedly visiting the sanitarium late last night to question "a woman."

Meanwhile, Wickliffe firemen resumed today their search among the ruins for a ninth body, that of a woman patient unaccounted for since the fire broke out.

ESCORT SLAIN, GIRL STABBED

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Mark Goodson, former policeman, was killed and his companion, Mrs. Jerome May, 30, was shot and stabbed last night in a woods near North Little Rock. Mrs. May told police they were attacked by an unidentified Negro. Posses were called out.

She was found, suffering from 13 knife stabs and birdshot wounds, staggering along a highway. Her condition is critical.

Mrs. May said she and Goodson were parked in an automobile when the Negro approached, held them up with a shotgun, marched them into the woods, and murdered her companion. She was wounded in fighting off his subsequent attack, she said.

ALIEN QUIZ NETS MORE ACTORS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Not until the status of every foreign actor in Hollywood has been definitely determined will the United States Immigration Bureau close its investigation of the film colony, Murray W. Garsson, special assistant Secretary of Labor, said today.

Garsson said he plans to question all aliens in the industry, from star to extra, to determine if any of them is illegally in the country.

Two more actors were in the federal net today on charges of overstaying their visitor permits. They are Sonny Ray, 27-year-old Australian actor, and Antonio Camuellas, a Spanish actor.

Previously, federal agents arrested John Farrow, author of a number of screen plays. His hearing was held behind closed doors yesterday. Farrow allegedly is a native of Australia.

Husband in Jail, Wife Asks Divorce

Mrs. Sussana Chisick, Homestead, whose husband, she testified, is in jail for beating her, yesterday asked Judge Elder W. Marshall for a divorce from John Chisick.

At the time of their troubles, Chisick lived in Park avenue, Clairton. The wife testified her husband drank to excess.

King 'Satisfactory' After Operation

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—former King George, of Greece, underwent an operation for appendicitis today. Hospital authorities described his condition as "satisfactory."

Raiding Drys Foil Escape by Ladders

Federal prohibition agents and constables raiding a club on the second floor of 703 Middle street North Side, late yesterday frustrated two attempts by the alleged bartender and a dozen guests to flee by rope ladders. Surrounding the building the agents kept watch as other officers broke into the building and reported seizing a quantity of beer and whisky.

John Gallagher, alleged bartender, was held in $1,000 bail for a hearing Monday before Squire W. S. Edwards.

Nun Fatally Hurt In Auto Collision

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 4.—Sister Marie Terese, of the Benedictine Order, a music teacher at St. Michael's at Fryberg, near Oil City, was fatally injured late yesterday in an automobile collision near Oil City. She died in the Oil City Hospital. Two other nuns in the same car, Sisters M. Eileen and M. Gervase, were unhurt.

Sister Marie Terese was born Miss Ruth Grugin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Grugin, of Erie.

Dog Gets Honor Collar For Saving 7 at Fire

"Prince," a 6-year-old shepherd dog, was given a collar today by the Humane Society for his saving of seven persons in a fire which swept their home.

"Prince," owned by Rudolph Waldorf, of 1041 Shreve street, awakened in the night by the smell of smoke in the Waldorf home, aroused the members of the family. When some of the children wished to go back into the house to retrieve possessions, "Prince" interfered.

Those he awakened when the fire broke out are Mrs. Julia Waldorf, the mother, 49, and her children, Rudolph; Anna, 14; Isabella, 12; Henry, 10; Johnny, 7, and Margaret, 5. The father was at work at the time.

"Prince" acted more like an excited pup of six months than a staid shepherd of six years, when W. F. Wentzel, superintendent of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, affixed his collar of honor.

Milk Price Control Plan Urged For Ohio

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—State supervision of the distribution of milk in a system virtually entailing price control was recommended yesterday by a special committee appointed by Gov. George White to investigate Ohio's milk situation.

The committee proposed a state licensing board to control milk distribution in a manner similar to the supervision of real estate and insurance business. Measures to carry out the program will be prepared for submission to the State Legislature.

Mrs. Roosevelt 'Joins' Ad Club Here

A telegram accepting associate membership in the Woman's Advertising Club of Pittsburgh was received from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the annual dance of the club in the William Penn Hotel last night.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Roosevelt was elected to membership in recognition of her interest in advertising, and a telegram of notification sent to her in New York.

EDUCATION, NOT LAW, CHURCH HOPE, COUNCIL HEAD SAYS

REVISED CREED DISCUSSED BY DR. BEAVENS

Churches must rest their hope upon education rather than legislation if they want to realize their programs for social justice, the Rev. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, recently elected president of the Federal Council of Churches, declared today at Rochester, N. Y.

Discussing the revised social creed of his group, he advocated "wider and fairer distribution of wealth," "shorter working hours," "the building of a co-operative world order" and unemployment and old-age insurance.

He asserted:

"In working for these ideals, the Federal Council of Churches, with a membership of 22,000,000, will have to be careful not to make the mistake of relying so greatly upon law, as they have been in the case of prohibition."

MUST BUILD OPINION

The churches' main hope in obtaining any permanent adoption of their ideals depends upon their ability to create a moral conscience in public opinion, he declared.

He continued:

"There is a proper place for emphasis upon legislation to secure proper protection for an ideal when it once represents public opinion, but to depend on law instead of continuing education is a false hope."

Dr. Beaven, who is also president of the Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, sees present day conditions demanding no great change in a minister's essential qualifications.

He said:

MODERN FIELDS

"There are a number of modern fields of knowledge that will help him in his work. But they are supplementary. For instance, he can become aware of the problems of his day in such fields as sociology, economics, and psychiatry, and study to be a wise counsellor to his generation in solving these and other problems.

"Skill in such fields is a tool with which he works, and is important. But the thing without which he cannot be an efficient minister is the ability to help people, individually and as a group, to find God and to avail themselves of the power for daily life that comes from that contact."

Theories of Darrow Target of Volunteer

CAPT. WILLIAM E. COLLINS

Adjt. Collins Will Talk on 'Future Generation'

Theories of Clarence Darrow will be attacked in the Volunteers of America Church, Sandusky and East Diamond streets, North Side, tomorrow evening. Adjt. William E. Collins will preach on "The Future Generation," based on Darrow's recent assertion that "the world is all wrong, and that young people should jump out of the windows rather than face the future looking for employment."

In discussing his prospective sermon, Adjt. Collins said:

"I never knew a time when the youth of the country needed more encouragement than at present. Every boy and girl, if given a chance, will come out successful in life. The statement of Darrow is anything but uplifting. The animal that Mr. Darrow claims to be our ancestor would not permit its young to do what he advises the youth of the world to do. The future generation also will profit by our experience and will learn that Mr. Darrow is wrong and not the world."

Bible Verse Contest To Be Held Tomorrow

Six to Compete in St. Luke's Church, West View

Two young men and four young women will compete in the St. Luke's Lutheran Church, West View, at 7 p. m. tomorrow to determine the 1933 Bible verse championship of the church. The present champions, Evelyn Kummer, Howard McKinney and Jacque La Belle, Jr., who deadlocked in last year's competition with a record of repeating more than 700 Bible verses from memory in two and one-half hours, will be opposed by Martha Hammerschmitt, Ruth McKinney and Harriet Jones.

According to the rules, any Bible verse may be repeated from memory, with the exception of the First and Twenty-third Psalms, the Ten Commandments and the Lord's Prayer. An accurate tally is kept by four judges. Two chances are given each contestant and the verses must be accurately repeated, word for word. More than 1,000 verses will be repeated in the contest this year, according to the Rev. L. P. Spoehr, pastor.

Mr. Lissfelt

Vladimir Horowitz again played a stupendous piano program in Syria Mosque last night and amazed his audience by a display of musicianship and technical fireworks that have not been known in this generation. Franz Liszt died before most of us were born, but this young Russian must be his reincarnation if all the stories are true which I have heard from the lips of Liszt's own friends about the playing of the mighty Hungarian.

Horowitz has played dazzlingly for us each time he has come, but last night's performance transcends any music he has made for us until now. Formerly we believed his speedy fingers distorted the patterns of the music; last night his tempo only enhanced their subtleties. Formerly we made reservations in accepting all he said with his classics; last night his Bach was the mighty fortress of his program, and the sheer joy of playing such Beethoven won us all from the first notes.

Of his Schumann we can speak in raptures; from the most delicate nuances of the "Arabesque" throughout the sweep of the "Toccata" it was splendid music. In Chopin Horowitz attains his majestic effects not with gorgeous tone, but through the utter refinement of his phrasing.

"Funerailles" was a pageant of ominous coloring with artful restraint. It was no longer virile, but godlike. The childish simplicity of both Poulenc novelties and the Debussy only whetted our imagination for the most lavishing display of virtuosity I have ever seen or heard, that is, when the pianist abandoned his fingers and spirit to the "Danse Macabre." And there was music in all, for we were not only hearing, but living with each composer.

The A Flat Waltz of Brahms, the Bumblebee of Rimsky-Korsakoff, and the inimitable "Petrouchka," which Stravinsky himself arranged from his suite, came as encores when we thought Horowitz must already have exhausted himself.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

SENATE MAY PROSECUTE BARRY FOR VOTE SALE CHARGE

BLAINE INSISTS ON QUIZZING 'AL' SMITH

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—After one of the most dramatic sessions of its history, the Senate today considered the advisability of ordering its suspended Sergeant-at-Arms, David S. Barry, prosecuted for alleged criminal libel, because he charged members of Congress had taken bribes for their votes on legislation.

Barry made the charges in a magazine article, published in the New Outlook, of which Alfred E. Smith is editor. He was suspended by a viva voce vote, after the Senate refused, 31 to 49, to order his immediate discharge. He has held the post for 12 years.

ABSOLVES SMITH

Barry freely admitted writing the articles and absolved Smith from any connection with it. He said he dealt solely with Frank Tichenor, owner of the magazine.

Chairman Norris today called a meeting of the Judiciary Committee for Monday.

Norris said he had written the suspended officer to be present Monday in event the committee decides to take evidence. Should the committee decide to hear testimony, the chairman said, it would be in the open. He declared:

"I don't want to take any testimony behind closed doors."

Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, a committee member, insisted that Smith be called for questioning, as well as Tichenor, owner of the magazine.

Barry was given a public trial by the Senate in a proceeding utterly without precedent. He was the first official of either branch of Congress ever tried by one body or the other for attacking the integrity of the members.

Hailed to the bar of the Senate on motion of Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, he made a brief statement, disclaiming any intent to libel Congress. First he asserted he did not intend to charge members of Congress with taking bribes. Later, in another statement, he said he believed the charges true—that it was only a "matter of opinion" whether Congressmen took bribes.

ARTICLE ATTACKED

The portion of his article, which aroused Congressional resentment, read:

"Contrary perhaps to the popular belief, there are not many crooks in Congress; that is, out and out grafters and those who are willing to be such. There are not many Senators or Representatives who will sell their votes for money, and it is pretty well known who these few are."

SENATE VOTES BUYING OF U. S. PRODUCTS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—An overwhelming majority of the Senate went on record last night in favor of the "Buy American" policy.

All federal agencies would be ordered to purchase only American-made goods, under a provision written into the Treasury postoffice appropriation bill by a vote of 41 to 12.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator Hiram W. Johnson, (Rep.) of California, must be approved by the House before it becomes effective. It was adopted after a spirited fight against it by Democrats.

BLAINE MOVE DEFEATED

Earlier, the advocates of the Buy American policy defeated an effort by Senator Blaine, (Rep.) of Wisconsin to weaken the Johnson provision. By a vote of 57 to 17, the Senate rejected a proposal to permit the government to purchase manufactured supplies made from foreign raw materials.

The action assured victory for the Johnson amendment directing the purchase of American products unless the cost is so excessive it would be detrimental to the public interests.

On the final vote, Democrats, Republicans and Progressives joined hands for the Buy American policy.

JOHNSON CITES BRITISH

Senator Johnson said:

"Why can't we do like the British? Only British goods can be used in the construction of public works in Great Britain. Why is a virtue in Britain a vice in America?

"I insist there is no question of the tariff involved in this amendment. I insist there is no question of an embargo involved. This amendment simply means that the money of the American taxpayer will be used to buy American products by the American government?"

'CARNIVAL'

New Vaudeville Idea Introduced

Blue Danube Concerts Begin

Something new on the ether waves—a vaudeville type of program that may become a regular thing before many moons—is introduced to NBC-WJZ listeners tonight. The new presentation, heard locally through KDKA, is a 25-act, fast-stepping production directed by Frank Black and scheduled from 8:15 to 10:30 p. m. It replaces, for tonight only, the Boston Symphony Concert, and is billed "Radio Carnival."

Miss Lee

Among the performers, supported by Black's orchestra, are Ray Perkins, Irving Kaufman and Phil Cook as masters of ceremonies; Ohman and Arden, the Don Hall Trio, the Sizzlers, Dandies of Yesterday, Harriet Lee, James Melton, the Sixteen Singers; McLallen, Sarah and Sassafrass; Ann Butler, Jacques Thibault and a headlining cast in a mystery sketch, "Bad Man."

"Blue Danube," a new series of orchestral concerts featuring Viennese music and presented by a large symphony orchestra under the direction of Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, bows on WCAE at 9 tonight. The programs will consist of musical visits to various well-known landmarks in Vienna and its suburbs.

The first of a series of true crime stories, by Elmer W. Faber, historian of the Pennsylvania sttate police, is listed on KDKA at 5:30 p. m. Today's deals with the fatal shooting of Corp. Brady Paul, near New Castle, in 1929, during a gun battle with Irene Schroeder and Glen Dague, who paid the penalty in the electric chair.

'The Ghost Weeps' On 4 Stations

"The Ghost Weeps," the second of this week's American Weekly dramas, with Charlotte Walker, noted Broadway actress, portraying the principal role, is presented today on WCAE at 7 p. m., KQV at 9:15 p. m., WWSW at 8 p. m. and WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va., at 5:30 p. m.

With Addas Abayia in the lead, "The Mystery of the Kremlin" is offered by WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va., at 6 p. m.

The American Weekly programs are offered over more than 100 radio stations throughout the country by 17 Hearst newspapers, including the Sun-Telegraph, with which the magazine is distributed each Sunday.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen.

So it's come to this. Students of one of the city's most popular secretarial schools get their shorthand practice by taking down the broadcast, transcribing it and then using it to criticize the English as part of the classwork. So that's why the old ears have been on fire lately . . . Just something more to worry about.

* * *

Must take a back seat for Nick and Vic, of Allison Park. Here is their globe-trotting record. Left for Canada Monday afternoon at 3. Traveled by way of Erie, Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Returned Tuesday morning at 11:30 (20½ hours). Hitch hikin' all the way. (Sharlie was (ore.)

Mrs. W. C. K., South Aiken avenue—Try the general inspector again. He is anxious to adjust differences between listeners and amateurs.

Thanks, Miss Dougherty. So you pronounce it Danks-

Say what you want about that old groundhog who was here the other day. Remember how warm it was? . . . the sun shining? . . . the shadow that woodchuck saw? . . . Now, who is wrong?. It's cold, isn't it? Explain that, Mr. Brotzman.

* * *

Another thing about the personal property tax that I didn't mention the other day. No, Mr. Crowder. Not all stocks or bonds need be declared. Stocks of Pennsylvania corporations are not taxable. Likewise stocks of foreign companies doing business in Pennsylvania and paying the tax direct to the commonwealth need not be declared. A. T. & T. is exempt.

Shields' Political Review on WCAE

A review and analysis of recent political developments of both local and national interest is offered by Mark Shields, political editor of the Sun-Telegraph, on WCAE at 6 tonight.

News flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are broadcast today on WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 2:15 p. m. and on WCAE at 6:30 p. m.

The Globe-Trotter's 12:15 broadcast will be cancelled Monday only in order that WCAE and WJAS listeners may hear a broadcast of the Coolidge memorial service during the joint session of Congress.

ON THE AIR

Weeks Given Steady Job With Pearl

A permanent and exclusive job as purveyor of rhythm on the Thursday night cigaret hour featuring Jack Pearl has been given to Anson Weeks . . . 'n' Weeks, as was reported recently in this column, has been rehearsing lullabies! . . . After a brief tryout on the air, Victor Young and his string ensemble have been signed for the Mills Brothers' broadcasts . . . Jesse Crawford may go to Europe to make organ records, Crawford being a top seller across the waves.

Mr. Young

Pittsburgh's newest Mr. Miller has been named Michael by his fond papa, Ford Miller, of WCAE.

Leo Reisman always hums songs as he broadcasts, so they keep the microphone 10 feet away from him.

Those Sisters of the Skillet are having their troubles . . . Listeners are asking them to solve household problems through the application of technocracy . . . and speaking of the new idea, Harry Hershfield, the Broadway jester, is writing a song called "The Technocracy Way With Technocracy."

Story . . . (and it's true) . . . Loretta Lee, of the New Orleans Lees, went to New York hoping to get into radio. Within three days after her arrival, George Hall, the maestro, heard her singing in a music publisher's office and liked her voice. Within another three days, arrangements were completed which put Miss Lee on CBS six times a week—all this despite the fact that the chances of an unknown singer in New York landing on a network are about one in 5,000. She got the job, incidentally, on Friday, the thirteenth.

'Inside Story' of Baron On Sunday Radio Page

Jack Pearl's greatest fame has come as the "Baron Munchausen," the world's most magnificent liar—and yet one of his superstitions is that he'll be punished for telling an untruth. He's bewildered by radio technique.

These and other little-known facts about the human side of this great comedian are revealed in an exclusive article written by Aircaster, noted radio commentator, and published on the radio page of tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

Closing 1932 Bond Prices To Be Given As Tax Return Aid

Further assistance in making returns for personal tax purposes will be given by the Sun-Telegraph next week through the publication of tables of the final bond quotations of 1932. A table of the last sale prices of bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange will appear on the Buyers' Guide Page on Monday. On Tuesday a table of the final quotations of bonds listed on the New York Curb will appear on the finance pages.

FIFTH AVENUE CAFE HELD UP

A customer in Van's restaurant, at 1502 Fifth avenue, was robbed of $7 by two Negro bandits, according to a report to Center avenue police today. One of the bandits was armed.

Awakened by the sounding of a burglar alarm, Albert Weiner, butcher and grocer, at 2126 Wylie avenue, told police he saw a man attempting to force entry to his store through a rear window. Roy Barkley, 31, of 2219 Wylie avenue, arrested as a suspect, was held in Center Avenue Police Station on a suspicious person charge.

Andrew Kiser, of 312 Forty-fifth street, reported to police he had been "strong-armed" by two men who jumped from an automobile and robbed him of a watch valued at $45 in Butler street, near Fifty-second street.

DIGGERS SEEK SPANISH GOLD

McLAIN, Miss., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The sparkle of a big diamond and the rattle of spanish doubloons today attracted hundreds of persons to Gaines Creek, five miles from here, where a fortune was believed buried before the Civil War by Young Gaines, a wealthy plantation owner.

"Prospectors" with pick and shovel began at dawn, a spirited digging of soil on the creek banks in search of treasure after the news had spread that two "strikes" had been made.

Ab Sylvester and his brother, West Sylvester, made the original find while chopping logs at the creek. They found gold coins scattered about a half buried tin can that had rotted with age. Caving of the creek bank revealed the cache. The brothers scooped up the coins, Spanish doubloons reported to number 1,200, and brought them to McLain in their dinner pails.

The second find, a large diamond in a metal receptable, some American money, Spanish gold coins and a large gold pocket knife, fell to Forrest Lea, a farmer.

Murder Hint in Death Of Diamond Dealer

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Investigation of the death of Max Marcus, 62-year-old diamond merchant, continued today on the theory he might have been slain and robbed. The merchant, his pajamas aflame, fell from a hotel window Thursday night.

The inquest was adjourned after a son, David Marcus, told a coroner's jury a diamond ring worn by his father when he left their Los Angeles home Wednesday on a business trip was not found on the body.

OBITUARY

James M. Young.

James M. Young, 77, retired financier, died yesterday in his home, 7220 Meade street, East End. Mr. Young, former head of the J. M. Young & Co., was born and reared in old Allegheny. His banking career started with the former Penn Bank, which he left to become connected with the former Second National Bank, where he rose to vice president. With the merger of that institution and the First National Bank, he became the active vice president. He resigned in 1914 to organize the Young firm, from which he retired in 1928. He leaves three sons, Baird, Lew and James M. Young, Jr.; a brother, Frank D. Young, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Pfahl.

Dr. James S. Meharey.

Funeral services for Dr. James S. Meharey, 33, of 405 Barnes street, Wilkinsburg, who died yesterday at the home of his wife's parents in Bridgeville, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the D. L. Wareham funeral home, 814 Center avenue. Dr. Meharey was born in Turtle Creek and had lived nine years in Wilkinsburg, where he practiced dentistry. He was a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and a Mason. He leaves his widow; a son, Richard; his father, Samuel; two brothers, Andrew, of Springdale, Pa., and Edward, and a sister, Mrs. Edward Swarner.

Fred H. Irwin.

Funeral services for Fred H. Irwin, 38, of 911 Western avenue, who died Wednesday, were held today at his home. Mr. Irwin was a World War veteran, a member of the First Battalion, 155th Depot Brigade. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Eva Irwin Lloyd.

Carnegie Fund Scored In House as Menace

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(INS.)—The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the Rockefeller Foundation and the John D. Rockefeller interests were denounced in the House as "the largest and most formidable promoters of the subversive, disloyal and seditious movement against American independence and American neutrality."

Representative George Holden Tinkham (Rep.), of Massachusetts, yesterday declared:

"The time is here to unmask those disloyal and seditious organizations and individuals who are attempting to destroy the independence of the United States, to subvert her national integrity and to involve her in advance in the next European war."

Their platform, he asserted consists of four planks:

"1—Entry of the United States into the permanent court of international justice of the League of Nations.

"2—Entry of the United States into the League.

"3—Disarmament of Europe, but first the disarmament of the United States.

"4—Destruction of American neutrality by an affirmative commitment under the so-called Kellogg-Briand pact."

The World Court, Tinkham said, is merely the bureau, organ political instrumentality, agent and servant of the League of Nations. He declared the League to be purely a British conception.

Tinkham said Andrew Carnegie was alien born and alien minded. He cited many statements and writings by the Scotch steel master to prove he sought and urged a reunion of Great Britain and the United States.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Society, as well as everyone else in Pittsburgh who loves music, was enthralled at the Horowitz concert last night in Syria Mosque. And no one could accuse the audience, from the parquet circle to the top of the second balcony, of being unresponsive.

It was one of the most brilliant audiences at a concert for many a day, with the boxes taken by many of the smart set.

Mrs. H. H. McClintic, one of Pittsburgh's most faithful supporters of music, was in her box. She wore a rose-leaf green satin frock.

Another social leader I noticed in one of the boxes was Mrs. William Thaw, Jr.

Others were the Blair Childses, with Mrs. Childs wearing beige lace, trimmed with mink. During intermission she was chatting with Mrs. James McKay, the former Frances Reed, who wore a lovely gown of black lace with a draped cape and long, full sleeves of orange velvet.

Seen at Concert

Petite Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., was charming in a black crepe frock having a pleated organdy frill outlining the decolletage and extending over the shoulders.

Black, with accents of blue, was popular last night. Brunette Betty Childs was stunning in a black satin frock having a bodice jacket of Alice blue satin. Betty Shaw wore black crepe with King's blue satin draped at the decolletage, and Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas chose the same color combination for her gown.

Betty Kennedy, wearing cherry-red crepe, was with her mother, Mrs. John J. Kennedy, in soft green satin. And I had a glimpse of Mary Rust in bright blue crepe with her mother, Mrs. S. Murray Rust.

Laura Childs and Laura Oliver, wearing blue crepe, were chatting together in the lobby, and in another group were Dorothy Blaxter and her mother, Mrs. H. V. Blaxter, and Patricia Witherow in chartreuse green crepe with the cape collar outlined in mink, and her mother, Mrs. William P. Witherow in blue satin.

Chatting In Lobby

Mrs. John W. Lawrence chose black velvet, Rosamund Pitch, deep red velvet, and Betty Higgins, rose-red heavy crepe with a draped square neckline in front.

Others there were the David I. McCahills and their twin daughters, Marie and Marguerite, Adele Lippincott, who sat in a box; Mrs. William H. McNaugher, Mrs. Raymond Hilliard, Mrs. D. F. H. McDowell and Mary Trimble and Sarah McDowell, Margaret Painter in dark red crepe and her mother, Mrs. C. A. Painter, Jr., Mrs. Harry W. Rafferty in turquoise blue crepe with a jacket to match, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Mrs. John A. Byerly.

William H. Robinson, the junior William H. Robinsons, Elizabeth Robinson, all of Pittsburgh, and the Leslie Buswells, of Gloucester, Mass., (Mrs. Buswell is the former Mary Robinson) are registered at the Venetian Hotel, Miami, Fla., for the season.

Visiting In South

The William Kountzes are also at the hotel for a short time. Mrs. Kountz is the former Bobbie Wilson.

400 Attend Cinema Ball Given by Adsters to Help Relief Work

By Mrs. CHARLES M. BREGG

More than 400 persons attended the annual Artists' and Adsters' Friske Frolic given last night in the William Penn Hotel by the Women's Advertising Club. It was, as usual, a benefit affair, the proceeds to be used for unemployment relief. This year's event was known as a cinema ball and, to carry out the idea, the guests entered through a great glittering circle representing a camera lens and over an aisle of crash that bore all sorts of ridiculous legends and drawings.

The ball room was hung with huge heads of movie stars, across the mirrors were painted in huge letters all the superlatives in the vocabulary of a movie press agent, and here and there were Ad Club-made palm trees to further create Hollywood atmosphere. Only colored floods were used to light the ballroom. Adding to the general decorative scheme were the place favors, confetti, rolls, noise makers, paper hats and appropriately topped boxes of confections and toiletries.

Many of the guests came in costume to represent movie stars. In the gowning one noticed a great deal of black and an equal amount of the season's favorite, white. And there were many muffs, cunning little things, that matched the short jackets which were worn into the ballroom.

Martha Hunt Morris' party of 36 covers was the largest and, as usual was marked by special table decorations. In the center was a large Mickey Mouse, and the place cards were brown derbies. For entertainment a professional floor show was seen and an old-fashioned melodrama was thrown on the screen.

During the evening a telegram was sent to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, telling her she had been elected an associate member of the club in recognition of the added dignity she has given advertising.

Donors' Reception Planned Mar. 3 By Hadassah

Instead of a donor luncheon this year, Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadassah will give a donor reception and musicale, Thursday afternoon, March 30, having been set for the affair.

Another change this year makes optional the size of the gift which any donor may make, but the givers will be divided into patronesses, hostesses and donors.

With Mrs. Julius H. Cohen as chairman ex-officio, Mrs. J. H. Marcus will be general chairman, and Mrs. M. J. Goodstone, vice chairman.

Ingomar Women to Meet With Mrs. D. C. Wilson

The February meeting of the Woman's Club of Ingomar will be held at the home of Mrs. D. C. Wilson on Thursday. The speaker for the afternoon will be Mrs. George H. Kelley, director of the Beaver County better homes movement, whose subject will be "Art in the Home." Mrs. Dale Whitby Westphal will furnish the music.

Richard Markey Egan To Wed Mary Haskell

A most interesting engagement, both here and in the East, since the bridegroom-elect is a member of Rolling Rock Hunt, is being announced this afternoon in New York.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William N. Haskell announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Haskell, to Richard Markey Egan, at a tea they are giving this afternoon in their Park avenue home.

Gen. Haskell has been commander of the New York National Guard for the past seven years. Mary Haskell attended Dobbs Ferry and Miss Chapin's School, and is a member of the New York Junior League.

Mr. Egan, who was born in Baltimore, and lived recently in Pittsburgh, is the son of the Charles E. Egans, of Brooklyn.

He attended Columbia University, and is a member of the Rolling Rock Hunt, the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club and the Squadron C Club.

Judge Smith Speaker For 11th Ward Meeting

Judge Ralph H. Smith will address the Eleventh Ward Council of Republican Women on Tuesday afternoon in Mrs. George Albertson's home, Stanton avenue.

* * *

George E. Vaughn, in speaking before the Bryn Mawr Farms Woman's Club on Wednesday afternoon, will discuss "Furs." The women will meet in the Woodside School.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

The L. H. Burnetts, of the King Edward Apartments, have a most frisky Airedale dog, which dearly loves a good scrap with a fellow dog.

Recently when the Burnetts were showing guests a film taken when the family—and their dog—were at the shore this past summer, the dog became wildly excited at the sight of his own picture, and became so eager for a fight that he tore down the curtain the pictures were being shown on.

One of Mrs. Mary Jane Cowley's favorite stories of her visit to Switzerland is about a Danish guide. She told him:

"I want to see the Lion of Lucerne."

He answered:

"We don't have any zoological garden here, lady."

One of the members of the Kingsley Auxiliary is named Mrs. Aiken Head—say it aloud.

MISS MARTHA HUNT MORRIS . . . 'MICKEY MO USE' AND 36 FRIENDS GUESTS AT HER TABLE

Katharine James Bethrothed to G. Ritchie, Jr.

A betrothal of interest is being made known today, a betrothal that will end in a spring wedding.

The Henry Duvall Jameses, of Locust street, Edgewood, announce the engagement of their daughter, Katharine Duvall James, to Gordon Ritchie, Jr.

Katharine is a graduate of the Pennsylvania College for Women and the Ellis School, and she also attended Wellesley College. Her fiance is a graduate of the Palling School and Brown University. He is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Squirrel Hill Chapter O.E.S. Bridge Party on February 13

A birthday bridge party has been planned for Monday evening, February 13, by Squirrel Hill Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star. Mrs. Max J. Spann is general chairman of the affair, which will take place in Webster Hall.

Dormont Mothers Child Study Group to Meet

The child study department of the Dormont Mothers' Club will meet at the home of Mrs. E. G. Stoner, Montpelier avenue, Tuesday evening. Mrs. H. C. Stevens will assist.

This department, which usually treats of some subject which is helpful to the mothers, has chosen an unusual theme for Tuesday, "The Revolt of Modern Youth," to be presented by Mrs. J. J. Hoerath. An open forum will follow.

Mrs. Donald P. Maxwell, violinist, will be accompanied by Mrs. Harold G. Ewens.

Announcements Made of Two Betrothals

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. H. McIlvaine, of Washington, Pa., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Hamilton McIlvaine, to Francis Henry Tomlin, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Henry Tomlin, of Haddonfield, N. J.

Mrs. Hyman Becker and Mrs. William Haus were hostesses at a bridge party in their home in Epiphany street, Tuesday evening, in honor of Miss Dorothy Becker, whose engagement to Albert Solomon was recently announced.

Aspinwall Woman's Club Depts. to Meet Next Week

Out in Aspinwall next week the Woman's Club will have its drama department luncheon and a luncheon of the literature and arts department. Theater talks will be given at the former, which it set for Monday at 1 o'clock, while at the second meeting, on Tuesday, there will be table talks on "Along Pennsylvania Highways."

These will be given by Mrs. C. A. Markle, Mrs. A. B. Reese, Mrs. C. W. Lepper, Mrs. J. M. Bowden and Mrs. E. F. Rober, of Springfield. Mrs. Rober is a daughter of Mrs. A. D. Chittenden, a former president and has exhibited with the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh. Mrs. A. P. Meyer will contribute a book talk that same day.

Librarian to Address Junior Club in Crafton

Mrs. Elizabeth Keith Botset, children's librarian at East Liberty Branch, Carnegie Library, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Crafton Junior Woman's Club on Tuesday evening at Wood's Hall. A book report by Mrs. William Hoehn and music by Miss Jessie Payne will complete the program. The club is at present interested in three one-act plays, which, sponsored by the drama committee, will be given Thursday evening, February 23, in the high school.

Mrs. Weir and Mrs. Burke Sponsoring Home Benefit

Mrs. Thomas Weir and Mrs. Delia Burke are sponsoring a benfit card party Wednesday evening in the Raphael Home, Penn avenue.

Beechview Club Groups Meet On Feb. 14

At the regular meeting of the Beechview Women's Civic Club, on February 14, the music and literary sections will provide the program, Mrs. Mary Brennen will sing, accompanied by Miss Helen Hinkley, with violin obligato by George Barbin, who also will give violin solos.

The ways and means committee will have a supper on Wednesday; there's to be a sewing for the blind on Thursday and on February 28 an all-day sewing for charity. The literary section's meeting is dated for the twenty-seventh.

Mrs. Ida Wright Bowman Speaker at Friday Club

No relief is adequate which does not provide self-respecting work, Mrs. Ida Wright Bowman said when she addressed the Friday Morning Club in Carnegie Music Hall. Mrs. Bowman mentioned the barter and exchange methods which are in use in some places and cited a 15 per cent increase in business as evidence that the country is coming out of its present economic crisis.

Mrs. Bowman discussed several different plans for refinancing industries and relieving unemployment and commented on the wild and alleged cures being foisted on the Senate.

Making "change" the keynote of her talk, Mrs. Bowman said adjustment is necessary and a desire for certain great changes, a reaching for new developments never before approximated.

Y.W. Fund Now $92,585, Campaign to Continue

The grand total in the budget campaign of the Young Women's Christian Association reached $92,585 yesterday afternoon when workers reported $6,690 at their meeting in International Institute.

The workers voted unanimously to continue their efforts for two more weeks to raise another $15,000 which will enable them to attain the $107,000 objective. The final meeting will be held on Friday, February 17, at the Institute.

Wilkinsburg Drama Unit Giving Play Monday

Eugene Pillot's fantasy, "My Lady Dreams," is to be presented by the drama department of the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club on Monday afternoon when the club meets in St. Stephen's Episcopal parish house. The cast, which is directed by Mrs. W. C. Hawley, includes Mrs. Earl Brown, Miss Mildred Gilchrist, Mrs. E. F. Lowry, Marjory Smith, Betty Leresch, and Mrs. C. D. Jeffrey. Preceding the play there will be violin numbers by Oscar Davis.

NEW FASHION TREND STRESSES MYRIAD AND CHIC VARIATIONS

PRACTICALLY every turn of fashions these days is against the ensemble idea. Coats differ in color and fabric from the dresses they accompany; hats, if done in the same color as a dress, vary in that color by the slightest shading—a yellow-brown hat with a red-brown dress, for example.

* * *

SO FAR-REACHING is this reaction against the ensemble that even in all-black costumes, designers make every effort to avoid monotony. Variations of cut, of fabric and of decoration separate, as much as possible, the coat from its companion dress. A bias-cut coat is often considered the smartest ally of a dress cut on the straight of the fabric.

* * *

A PROMINENT designer uses the distraction of different materials in the afternoon outfit in today's sketch. Dress, coat and coat-lining are all in black—even to the fur collar; but the materials are all different. The dress is marocain crepe, the coat velvet and the coat-lining moire. The only evidence of any matching is in the velvet gloves.

* * *

THERE IS nothing in the line of the coat to indicate its alliance with the dress. Its sleeve fullness is at the elbow, while the dress puts all accent at the shoulders; the coat is straight from shoulders to three-quarter hem, while the dress, which reaches to the new below-the-calf length, follows the lines of the figure to below the hips, then flares into ample folds to its hem.

New Officers Elected By County Federation

Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane is the new president of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, having been elected yesterday at the annual meeting held in Kaufmann's. Mrs. Cochrane is a past president of the Health Colony Club. Mrs. Horace Daugherty, of the Wilkinsburg Women's Civic Club, is the new second vice president and Mrs. L. P. Forman, of the Oakmont Woman's Club, is now treasurer. All were elected unanimously.

At the morning session Mrs. John S. Sloan, president of the hostess group, the Sarah Sloan Scholarship Club, welcomed the guests, there were reports, the Wilkinsburg Civic Club Choral sang and solos were given by Miss Blanche Lyons, of Chicago, with Miss Freda Wilson accompanying.

At luncheon Mrs. J. G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation, paid tribute to the "marvelous work" done by Mrs. H. J. Fox, the retiring county head, in developing a friendly and co-operative spirit between the clubs.

The afternoon's program consisted of three plays by Mrs. May T. Neff, which were presented by players under the direction of Karl Emerson Williams. There was a fine musical program by James Achtzehn, for whom Miss Marianne Genet played accompaniments, and by Mrs. Nellie E. Miller, soprano, and Miss Gladys S. Dove, contralto, Mrs. J. D. Boydston accompanying.

Aspinwall Woman's Club Depts. to Meet Next Week

Out in Aspinwall next week the Woman's Club will have its drama department luncheon and a luncheon of the literature and arts department. Theater talks will be given at the former, which it set for Monday at 1 o'clock, while at the second meeting, on Tuesday, there will be table talks on "Along Pennsylvania Highways."

These will be given by Mrs. C. A. Markle, Mrs. A. B. Reese, Mrs. C. W. Lepper, Mrs. J. M. Bowden and Mrs. E. F. Rober, of Springfield. Mrs. Rober is a daughter of Mrs. A. D. Chittenden, a former president and has exhibited with the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh. Mrs. A. P. Meyer will contribute a book talk that same day.

Beaver County Drama Festival This Week

Considerable interest attaches to the programs which the Beaver County Federation of Women's Clubs has prepared for its first annual drama festival, to be held Thursday and Friday evenings in the Beaver Falls Senior High School. Miss Minnie Bell and Miss Winifred Meehan have arranged the entertainment for the two evenings.

On Thursday the New Brighton High School Orchestra will play, directed by Paul Anthony; Mrs. P. A. Fernsler, president of the Federation, will welcome the guests and four one-act plays will be given. They are "Gas," "Jazz and Minuet," "The Valiant" and "Green Eyes From Romany," each of which will be presented by a different group.

Friday evening's program includes music by the Beaver High School Orchestra, Paul Slater directing, and the plays, "Why the Chimes Rang," "Will o' the Wisp," "Thursday Evening" and "The Gift."

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

Should Man Sue After Girl Breaks Engagement?

Has a man a right to sue a girl for breach of promise if she breaks her engagement?

"What a crazy idea!" you say. "Why shouldn't a girl break her engagement, if she decides she doesn't love the man?"

Why, indeed? But that isn't what you say if a man breaks his engagement with a girl. Then you feel that the girl has ample reason for suit, and should receive plenty of "heart balm."

"But that's different!" you say.

Is it? And, if so, why? Mike would like to know. Also maybe some other gentlemen.

Dear Miss Robinson—

I'm always reading how some girl is dragging a man into court and getting damages because he has broken her heart. But do you ever hear about any man getting damages because some girl has two-timed him? No, you don't.

Yet a girl can wreck a man's life as bad as any man ever wrecked a girl's, and if either sex is going to get damages I think it ought to be a 50-50 affair. Take my case, for example.

About four months ago I met a girl that I took a great interest in. We had good times together for about two months. We took in dances and shows and had quite a bit of fun. Many a time we played tennis and took long walks, and we seemed to be enjoying each other's company. I loved this girl very much. Any time I called for her, I always had some candy or flowers with me.

ENGAGEMENT BROKEN

As time grew on we became infatuated with one another. We became engaged. Was I happy? I'll say I was!

But suddenly, without any warning, a few days later she broke her engagement with me, without giving me any reason whatsoever. I asked her why she did this, and she informed me that it would be hard to explain; that if I wished to continue my friendship with her I could, but only as friends.

Does this seem justice? My answer is no. Emphatically no! If I had done that to her she would have sued me for breach of promise. But let a woman do that to a man, and that is all right.

In your column I read the articles where women complain of not being treated right by the stronger sex, but have they looked on the men's side of the matter? There are a lot of women in this world who will take a man for everything that he has, then throw him out on the streets. How many women will stick to the man when he is down and out? Not many. Of course, there are exceptions to the rule.

I feel so hurt that I would like to see the front pages of every paper in the United States smeared with the name of the girl that did me dirt. MIKE.

IS IT FAIR?

So there you have the man's side of it. Well; is or isn't it fair?

If it's dishonorable for a man to break his engagement with a girl without a most adequate reason, isn't it just as dishonorable for a girl to do so with a man?

It's 1933. Women are supposed to be equal with men. They share all masculine privileges. They have the same freedom. Then shouldn't they be held equally responsible in matters of honor?

Breach of promise suits? Perhaps you're one who believes that they are a disgusting misuse of the courts—a disgrace to modern America. But if they are permitted at all, why make men pay all the damages?

Haven't you seen women wreck the lives of men as often as you've seen men wreck the lives of women? Aren't there as many heartless female philanderers as there are males? And if such trickery is contemptible in a man, why isn't it in a woman?

Or perhaps you're for ladies getting by with all the murder possible. If so, what's your argument? Let's hear it—either pro or con.

"RED IS FOR DANGER!"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"So," chirrups Rosamond Redhead, "so I am a menace! Up until now I have had a cheerful notion that the ruddy color of my locks was a subject of argument. Hope 'told me a flattering tale.' I knew that there were men in the world whose born weakness was red hair. I knew that artists appreciated my incarnadine head. Certain romantic writers have given their leading lady rubicund or russet crowns of glory. I knew there was some talk of the red-head being significant. But always the blonde—the blonde—stood in my path. The accepted menace was golden. Red heads were called 'carrot' or 'copper'—according to the state of mind of the speaker—and then put upon the shelf while the world argued about which was the Lorelei—BLONDE or BRUNETTE! BUT, when a body of men of America petition for protection by law from the rubified lady—she steps up to the head of the class of The Fair; siren of sirens, seductress of all Circes, that proves it."

What the resolution drawn up by these fearful Adams proclaimed to be the characteristics peculiar to the red-haired woman smacked strongly of the feelings of a man who had loved and lost one! And had chewed the cud of bitterness ever since. I wonder did it worry the glorious-topped?

We have all known girls with the hair of glory. Whether they be unusually hot-headed I do not know—they never proved it to me. The sweetest-tempered girl I ever knew had hair like polished copper with a glow of rose on top.

The most beautiful hair in the world—red hair can be. And one thing I do believe. Whatever else goes with it, there seems to me to be strength and hardihood. The very hair itself is vigorous and alive.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Arthritis, Rheumatism Very Often Confused

I receive many letters from persons who suffer from arthritis. They ask for information about this disabling disease and are eager to know whether it can be cured.

Dr. Copeland

I am glad to say that arthritis is curable. It is a difficult and stubborn disease to cure, but modern science has gone far to conquer this affliction.

Many persons use the term "arthritis" when in reality they are referring to rheumatism, sciatica, neuritis or some other disorder that resembles arthritis. Arthritis is an inflammation of a single joint or of numerous joints of the body. The inflammation can be traced to an infection which may exist in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder or some other organ of the body.

To cure artnritis, the center of infection must first be discovered and then removed. The inflammation can only be healed when the source of the trouble is determined. If the poisoning can be traced to infected tonsils, for example, they should be removed. It may require months of care and attention to locate the source of infection, but when it is found the ultimate outcome is good. Do not become discouraged if you do not obtain immediate relief.

Correction of body posture, overcoming faulty elimination, improving hygienic conditions and care of the diet, are factors of great importance in the treatment of arthritis. Cases of arthritis have been traced to constipation. When this was overcome, the pain in the joints diminished and ultimately disappeared.

Colitis, an infection of the colon, a part of the large intestine, may lead to arthritis. A sufferer from arthritis and colitis can hope for cure when the intestinal disturbance is removed. For such patients careful regulation of the diet is beneficial and daily enemas may be useful. Of course, if diseased tonsils, teeth or sinuses are present they should receive the proper attention.

I am often asked whether acid fruits, such as lemons, oranges and grapefruit, are harmful to the sufferer from arthritis. These fruits contain acids, but when they are taken into the laboratory of the body, the acids are burned and bases are set free, substances which are alkaline. This helps the body neutralize tendency towards acidity.

The diet should be simple and nutritious. Include in it plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, as well as foods which contain valuable vitamins, mineral salts and liberal amounts of protein.

Avoid excessive eating and foods that are fat, fried or greasy. Drink at least six to eight glasses of water daily between meals. Chew your food slowly and thoroughly. Avoid all foods that are irritating and lead to digestive upset. Follow the instructions given you by your physician.

Do not neglect this disorder. It is more difficult to cure when it becomes chronic, with definite bony changes in the joints.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Squeezing Your Partner

In expert play, some of the masters are very fond of making bids to inhibit the lead of a suit which they feel may make impossible the realization of a contract. A player very fond of this type of bid is Mr. Sherman S. Stearns, who is recognized as one of the strongest players in New York. This explains his unusual Opening bid as East on the following hand:

East—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 8 4 ♡ K 10 9 ◇ A J 6 4 2 ♣ 7 5 3
♠ A 5 3 2 ♡ J 8 6 3 ◇ K Q 8 ♣ 10 6	North West East South	Mr. Stearns ♠ K Q 6 ♡ A Q 7 ◇ 9 7 5 3 ♣ 8 4 2
	♠ J 10 9 7 ♡ 5 4 2 ◇ 10 ♣ A K Q J 9

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Pass	1 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

This hand was played in a practice match for one of the major tournaments held recently in New York. North's Opening lead was the 4 of diamonds, which was won by West with the King. The heart finesse was then tried and the Queen won the trick. West now could see 6 tricks, and 7 if the spade suit broke 3-3. When North did not follow on the third spade, West's only hope was that the opponents might make a mistake. He therefore continued with a spade, which was won by South with the Knave.

If South, who was Mr. Walter Malowan, had now taken his five club tricks, his partner would have been squeezed, and West would have made his contract. Mr. Malowan, however, saw the danger, and led a small heart which was won in Dummy with the Ace. West still continued his strategy based upon his hope of a mistake by his opponents, and so led another heart, but North and South had defended the hand too well to fall into the trap, as North could only lead a club and the contract was defeated.

TODAY'S QUESTION

How can a Forcing bid be made when a hand contains 5 honor-tricks and no biddable suit?

Answer: There is no reason to make a Forcing bid merely because a hand contains 5 honor-tricks, as, in themselves, they are no guarantee of game. The player should make a shaded suit bid of one or an Opening bid of two notrump.

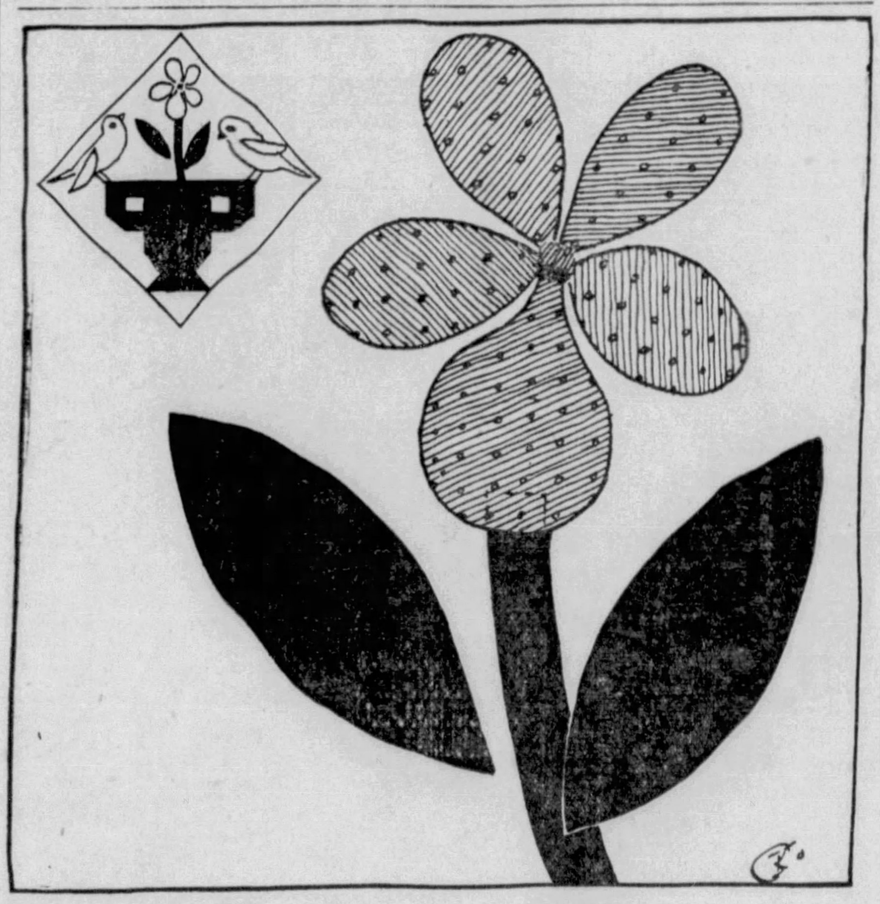
Nancy Page Quilt Club -:- By Florence La Ganke



Garden Bouquet Quilt -:- Block 20 -:- Violet

Nancy had told the members two weeks ago that the last flower was a spring one. They had guessed apple blossoms and johnny jump ups and Jack in the pulpits, not to mention Dutchman's breeches and bleeding hearts. But Nancy kept on saying, "No, no, not that flower."

The answer was easy, once the members of the Nancy Page quilt club saw the last drawing for the flower quilt, shown above. It was the violet, a large one, to be sure, but then Nancy said she knew a place where violets grew to be perfectly enormous—just enormous.

The color is easy for this last flower, something in violet or lavender, either plain or sprigged or dotted.

The very center is worked in yellow, fast color embroidery cotton.

The stem is done in green—bias tape, preferably.

The leaves are in green.

The design is applied to the white triangle which is seamed to the lower triangle made up of the pieced urn. The two birds are appliqued beside the flowers.

The method of making is the same as that used in all the previous blocks. Transfer pattern on lightweight cardboard is cut out and laid on the materials. These are cut with a quarter inch allowance on all sides for turning under the raw edges.

After the raw edges are basted and pressed in place the pieces are pinned onto the white triangle and appliqued in place. So are the birds, the leaves and the stems. And now the blocks are all finished.

These four blocks—the balloon flower, lemon lily, crocus and violet are seamed to the lower sides of the diamonds and triangles of white which have been seamed to the flower blocks in the row above.

This leaves the triangles of white to be put in between the flower blocks. Triangles only are used since we have now reached the outer part of the quilt. We need to get a straight edge on which to attach the border strip.

In the two lower corners, that is, on the lower left of the balloon flower block and the lower right of the last block, the violet, the small triangles measuring 12½ by 12½ by 8¾ are seamed. When these are all in we have a rectangular quilt measuring 68 by 97 inches.

Next comes the addition of the border strips. At the top, a white strip 68½ by 12½ is seamed on. At the bottom there is a white strip 68½ by 5½ and then below that strip of color 68½ by 6½. This makes the length of the quilt 108½ inches. The half inch comes off when the lining is seamed on.

The sides of the quilt have two strips each, one an inner one of white and then an outer one of color. These strips are cut or torn 108½ inches by 5½ for the white and 108½ by 6½ in color. This gives the finished width of 90½. The lining takes off the half inch so the quilt really is 108 inches long.

THE END.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Complications Begin to Multiply for Madge

So absorbed was I in my fear for Dicky that for a little while I did not realize what it was that Hugh was saying so monotonously, over and over again; but finally it cut through even my frantic demand to know if Dicky were all right, and I heard him saying:—

"Don't speak my name! Remember, you must not speak my name! Do you understand?"

"Yes, yes," I said. "I understand perfectly. But tell me what I asked, immediately.

"Everything is all right," he said, "but I have a message for you from—him. You are to come at once in your car to"—he named a neighboring village—"park your car at the railroad station, and wait in it until one of us comes. Be ready to leave at once. Can you do this?"

I made a mental calculation.

"I'll be there in less than 15 minutes," I told him, and was as good as my word. I stopped only to tell Lillian and Mary where I was going, taking care that Helena Brixton should not hear me mention Hugh's name; for that, of course, was his reason for insisting upon its not being spoken. So far the Brixtons were in ignorance of his presence in the village.

Lillian's eyes were suddenly bright at my news.

"I have a hunch," she said, "that they're on the track of something. Oh, hurry!"

MEETS HUGH

I drew up at the rustic railroad station in the neighboring village fully four minutes before the time I had named, but I did not have to wait a second. From a seat on the platform Hugh Grantland came toward me, folding a newspaper which he had been ostensibly reading, and which had shielded him from casual observation. I opened the door and nodded to him casually, and as he stepped in I threw out my clutch. He barely had closed the door when the car began to move, and I colored beneath the approving glance he gave me.

"Most smoothly done," he said. "Thank you. Please take the next turn to the right, then the second to the right. After that we shall be free from casual eyes, and I can give you the messages. I dare not bring myself to Sackettsville in daylight. I must not run the risk of being seen by Mrs. Brixton."

"You would run no chance today," I told him gravely. "She has been hysterical all day. Lillian is worn out with her care, but she will let no one save Lillian come near her. But first, before everything else, where is Dicky, and are you sure he is all right?"

HIDING PLACE FOUND

"He is perfectly all right, he said, "or was when I left the airport and motored back here. He was to take out another plane immediately, and planned to circle that little mountain plateau and drop the letter as directed. Then he expected to fly back to the airport, arrange for his plane for tonight, and then motor back to Sackettsville. But that takes time, you know. He may not be here for another two hours. That is why he wished me to come ahead with the news."

With my mind partly at rest about Dicky, for unreasoningly I had not feared his flying so much as I had his having Hugh with him during the flight, I was able to turn my mind to the message that Hugh was waiting to tell me. We were now driving along the lonely road that he had selected for its seclusion, and I slowed the car as I repeated his last word.

"News! Do you mean—oh, have you found the place where they have taken the girls?"

"We are very sure of it," Hugh replied, and I found my hands trembling so that I could hardly grip the wheel. Then Hugh's firm hand laid itself beside mine.

"I have it," he said. 'Let go and relax. I'll steer it to the side of the road, and we'll stop there while I tell you what you must know about this. I want to spare you everything I can, for you'll need all your strength tonight when we make that rescue. "We must have a woman to take care of the girls when we get them out. Mrs. Underwood cannot go, or Mrs. Brixton would know our plan, and that cannot be permitted."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Deference to Age

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When talking to a friend on a certain subject, if her mother comes in and starts talking to me, should I turn my attention to the mother, who is much older? I know that attention should be given to older people most of the time.

2—If you send a card to a friend at Christmas and you receive a card from that friend, is it proper to thank the friend for it? My friend says no, but I think yes.

3—I am invited to a ball. I personally think that when you go to a ball with a young man you should stay with him and not dance with anyone who comes along, as you would in a public hall. I think if you are introduced to them it is all right, but my girl friend thinks you should dance with anyone who asks you. Please tell me who is right. PEGGY.

1—This is a difficult situation, and I'm glad that it doesn't happen often. When it does happen, we find our heads bobbing from side to side in our efforts to be polite to both talkers. I suppose that it is best, under these circumstances, to give our attention as much as possible to the older woman.

2—You are right. The fact that cards were sent by both doesn't mean that neither should thank the other. To be polite, each should mention the card of the other and thank for it.

3—If a man, known to your partner or to someone else whom you know and meet at a ball, is introduced to you and asks for a dance it is quite proper for you to dance with him if you wish.

Morning Hotel Wedding

Dear Miss Beeckman:

My girl friend is to be married at a large hotel at 11 o'clock in the morning on a Friday.

Please advise me what is the correct attire to be worn on such an occasion? Is an afternoon dress the correct thing?

APPRECIATIVE READER.

Yes, an afternoon dress or ensemble is the correct thing for you to wear.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When wearing a blue frock, subdue the color of rouge and lipstick. When wearing black or brown the color can be brighter. Now that reds are fashionable, there will be heavy problems, since the shade of rouge used may not be of the same color family as that of the robe. Brunettes can get away with stronger make-up than blondes.

It is a crying shame that when a pretty girl has received a grand gift from heaven in the form of a nicely—outlined mouth she won't make it mind its manners, but permits it to droop dismally or take on a hard-as-nails, bear-trap expression. Eyes stay ever the same, mouths are ever in the making. Changes for the worse are due to facial gymnastics—dragging the chin inward, holding lips open, pulling down lip corners. There are scornful mouths, firm, cruel ones, antagonistic mouths. Lips should be moist, sweet and smiling, the kind the papa wants to kiss.

Household Hints

Flour sprinkled on burning oil will at once exterminate it.

When your suede gloves look greasy and shiny do not throw them away; rub very gently with fine emery paper.

When Baby Cries in Dark

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The mother of a very young baby said hopelessly the other day: "I started right, I'm sure. I put Elsa to bed alone, no rocking, no light, no attention to crying, and everything was fine until lately. Now, at six months old, she kicks up a terrible fuss about being put to bed, and cries when I leave the room. What's happened to her?"

Well, I'd say nothing alarming has happened to Elsa—just something that means development, and a realization at last that she IS alone in the dark. Elsa realizes also, and with great glee, that her lung power has increased tremendously and that her stick-to-it powers have taken on a sustained strength. In short, she can cry louder and longer now, and with a purpose. Her purpose is to persuade mother by any method to come in and see what's the matter. The fact that she smiles a welcome, "sings" and crows and acts exceedingly elated when mother responds ought to tell the whole story, but I know the uncertain feeling that grips a mother's heart when a child cries, and cries, and cries. It isn't a pleasant feeling.

Once again the young mother must begin at scratch, and this time teach baby consciously that he must go to sleep unrocked, alone and in a darkened room; for now he IS conscious of it, where before it was a matter of routine over which he had no power an less concern.

Thus twice in a child's life we must accustom him to this habit, and the hardest time is the period Elsa's mother is now enduring. She must prove to Baby that, although he knows and she knows he is alone, unrocked and unlighted, her plan is the one that is going to be adhered to. This only takes a week or a little more at the most, then it is over. But don't weaken! Baby has a line on you now that he didn't used to have, and will be only too quick to take up any advantage he gains at this time.

Add Depression Sillies

A personable chap, whose threadbare suit and boots were dusty, asked the farmer if there was anything he might do in return for a snack and a night's lodging. In response to the farmer's queries, the lad confessed that he couldn't milk a cow, chop wood, paint a barn or anything like that.

"I once worked in an advertising agency," he added, "I wrote convincing ads."

"Come to think of it," said the farmer, "I was thinking of sellin' my farm. Mebbe you could write one for me?"

Whereupon the ad expert set forth his salesmanship powers on paper, and an hour later delivered it to the farmer for his opinion.

"Hmmm," hmmm'd the farmer as he read the glowing account, "is this my farm?"

"Yes," said the lad.

"Then why the devil should I sell it?" was the retort—so the poor feller didn't eat or sleep that night—for being so clever.

Merciless Truth

Morris Gest sums up the Theater of Today with this observation:

"Noel Coward makes more in a night than Shakespeare made in a lifetime."

Gag

In a late spot the other night Izzy Elinson and others discussed Technocracy.

"You know," remarked one of the group, "soon the machine will even replace the orchestra leader!"

"Gee," sighed a chorusponden t, "I'll certainly miss Ben Burnie!"

"Oh, no you won't," said Izzy, "Bernie's sponsor is going to replace Ben with a machine that has a screw loose."

The Root of All Evil

Jack Pearl was serious when he told Amos 'n' Andy that he believed in Technocracy.

"What's the difference," said Pearl, "if they pay us off in potatoes, electricity, rent and so on?"

Pearl spellbound his hearers with his knowledge of it all, and his contentment with the stunt that would give us foods, ohms, ergs, etc., instead of currency.

An hour later, the radio star confided to a columnist:

"Walter, if the breaks keep good—in two years I'll have a million dollars!"

Naturally!

A producer who had put on one failure after the other, suddenly came out with a magazine article in which he ranted on producers who were fouling the theater "by putting on the wrong sort of plays." A couple of his pals couldn't fathom his piece.

"Why do you suppose," said one, "that he wrote that article on producers' mistakes?"

"Probably," retorted Jules Levine, "to prepare the public for his next."

Was His Face Red

J. L. says that when someone in the audience hissed him during a performance, Edwin Booth exclaimed:

"I am found out!"

Lily Harvey Walks Rope

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Ladies, try tight-rope walking for that bothersome embonpoint.

There is no better exercise for the figure, I am assured by Lillian Harvey, who rates a special bungalow at Fox and whose slim, blonde beauty shortly will adorn the musical "My Lips Betray."

Miss Harvey, I venture to say, is the only feminine star in Hollywood who actually is at home on the taut wire. She mastered the trick in four weeks for a single scene in a German picture. Imagine what would happen if one of our ranking beauties were asked to do the same.

But Miss Harvey is an inveterate worker and a jack-of-all arts.

"It wasn't so difficult," she tells me, "because I happen to skate rather well and I also toe dance."

We didn't go into it, but this blue-eyed English girl also sings and plays the piano.

"Tight-rope walking is really splendid for the body; it exercises every muscle and teaches balance," observed Miss Harvey. "I kept it up in Berlin after the picture and I'm going to have a wire strung in the house I've taken in Beverly Hills."

What impresses her most about Hollywood? The comparative comfort of picture making. Says she:

"Here I have people to teach me to dance, to sing. I have this beautiful bungalow. And we are in no rush. During the last two years in Germany, I have been out of makeup only 14 days. This is like a vacation to me."

You ought to feel the firm hand-shake this girl gives you.

Cruiser Tests On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of trial runs of two of Uncle Sam's newest cruisers are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The Portland, $12,000,000 floating fortress, is seen in speed trials off Rockland, Me. Off the Virginia Capes, the Indianapolis, sister ship of the Portland, tried out her guns for the first time. The Globe Trotter graphically describes the tests.

From Bogota, Colombia, are scenes of a fight staged between a bull trained for ring fighting and an African lion. The lion bounds upon the bull's back, but is tossed to the ground, then rushes around the ring pursued by the bull.

The return of musical comedy films sees Leroy Prinz, dance director, putting a host of beautiful girls through their paces at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Hollywood. The proceedings are interrupted by that well-known "interrupter" Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, who convulses the girls with one of his new songs.

Sir Malcolm Campbell is seen and heard as he arrives in New York to attempt to break his own world's auto record of 253.9 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Fla. Pictures taken there show his car in which he hopes to attain a 300-mile pace.

Next Stanley Feature To Open Wednesday

The current photoplay in the Stanley, "Hello, Everybody," starring Kate Smith, will run only through Tuesday and will be succeeded Wednesday by "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," a thrill melodrama featuring Lionel Atwill.

Weird as Poe Is Picture In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Many years ago H. G. Wells wrote a story called "The Island of Dr. Moreau," in which a heartless scientist squatted on a rock in the Pacific and experimented with animals to make them into human beings. That story is the basis of the picture at the Penn this week—"The Island of Lost Souls"—which beats almost anything Poe ever wrote for weirdness and horror. And as Dr. Moreau that excellent English actor, Charles Laughton, who was Nero in "The Sign of the Cross," has another opportunity to show his incisive art.

Mr. Seibel

"The Island of Lost Souls" is a great picture for several reasons. It is marvelous photography of dramatic backgrounds—waves and jungle that live, mobs of animal men that are directed with uncanny generalship. It is a great picture for its makeup of the "lost souls," chief of which is the one portrayed by Bela Lugosi, the gruesome Dracula. And it is a great picture because there is real acting in it—besides Laughton as Doctor Moreau, there is Richard Arlen as the hero and Arthur Hohl, a Pittsburgher, as the doctor associated with Moreau. There is the "Panther Woman," a screen actress with a melancholy languor most pathetic. And Leila Hyams has a few effective scenes as the woman of civilization who comes to the island to rescue her lover.

But most of all it is a great picture because it tells a fine story spun by a master of romance. This is the old Wells who was not concerned about propaganda or preaching. He could play the game of Jules Verne with the cards of Edgar Allan Poe. Anybody who wants a real chill along his spine should see "The Island of Lost Souls," but he'd better leave his scary little sister at home.

With a very fine travelogue showing life in Moscow and telling about Soviet rule without bias, with a Charley Chase comedy that is really funny, with a Mickey Mouse football cartoon as amusing as always, and a thrilling presentation of the Flying Codonas on their trapeze, there is a well-rounded program of ample variety that will stir a sluggish pulse.

Points About Players

Tonight will see the windup of "Melody," George White's swell musical show, in the Nixon, and that theater will light up its projection lamp again Monday night for the screening of "Cavalcade," photoplay of Noel Coward's drama of same title. Diana Wynyard Clive Brook head the cast that has many speaking parts and thousands of extras.

* * *

The new double feature bill in the Davis and Regent today includes Edmund Lowe and Wynne Gibson in "The Devil Is Driving" and Evelyn Knapp in "Air Hostess."

* * *

From today on for a week the Enright screen attraction will be Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude," with Norma Shearer and Clark Gable in the leading roles.

* * *

The Sheridan Square film today, to run through Tuesday, is "The Mummy," featuring Boris Karloff, with David Manners and Zita Johann in the cast.

* * *

Sunday midnight the Variety will present a new stage and screen bill. George Dewey Washington, Negro singer, will head the vaudeville. The photoplay will be Lois Wilson in "The Secrets of Wu Sin."

* * *

The screen feature in the Avenue Cinema Monday will be a Russian film, "Men and Jobs."

For Taxing, You Must First Catch Your Commuter

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We have new idea in New York City. Going to tax commuters.

This will raise finances without lowering social tone of city.

Connecticut spurns our offer. It says:

"We will keep our commuters home and make 'em citizens."

New Jersey gets real indignant in the Boston manner. When informed of the tax it said:

"Rather than pay a tax on them commuters we will show that man is free and equal by dumping 'em overboard."

That's where we fooled New Jersey. That last appropriation was so small that nobody could dredge the harbor deep enough to hide a commuter.

They say taxing commuters is Mayor O'Brien's idea. It certainly makes visitors welcome from all angles.

New York City bids you goodbye. Call again.

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

BRISTOL HOTEL, VIENNA, Austria.—To get a picture of the Vienna of today you have only to travel with me from my room in this beautiful hotel to a little bar that stands in a far-off corner of one of the lobbies. I wandered there late this afternoon because I was tired from a long drive around the city. Because the weather, as usual, was dark and threatening. Because I was blue—and because I thought a drink might cheer me up.

It was the town, itself, that had made me slightly blue. I remembered it vaguely as a city of sparkle and zest. I recalled bright, cheerful, gay faces. Dimly, my memory brought back to me a thriving town where the people seemed to have few worries and life was a joyous affair. Yes, the Vienna of old was a grand place.

But now it's all different. Oh, the beautiful buildings are still here and the peace and cleanliness of the city remain as remarkable as ever. But the people have changed. The faces have changed. The life has changed.

The zest has gone; the sparkle has vanished. The war has left a great scar that time seems to inflame rather than heal.

I remember talking to an Austrian in Berlin. He seemed downcast and I told him to cheer up. After all, I pointed out, this was a new year—and surely that called for rejoicing.

"My dear man," he replied. "You are going to Vienna, and you will see for yourself how little cause we have to rejoice. Vienna is one of the largest cities in the world. But you go from house to house and, when you have covered them all, see if you have found five people who will tell you honestly that they have cause for rejoicing. Five? Find one."

I didn't quite understand him then. I do now . . .

Travel with me now as I leave my room and walk through the main lobby. The Bristol is a massive building— and it's almost as empty now as it is massive. Guests are few and far between because things are too expensive. Yet the service is supreme, the food is superb and the atmosphere of luxury is preserved at all cost.

As you march through the palatial emptiness of it all, you must sense the ghosts of a prosperous past. Walk through a narrow corridor and there sits a large man, surrounded with cases that are filled with beautiful jewels. He is waiting for a sale, yet he continues to read his paper and doesn't even look up as you pass.

Ghosts? Strange people? They are all around you here. On my floor there is but one other guest. He occupies six rooms, he has lived here for six years. His income is large, but he does not enjoy it. He will eat nothing that has been touched by human hands. He washes himself incessantly, and the maids place 100 towels a day in his room.

He eats with gloves on because he is insane on the subject of disease. He imports famed physicians from other countries, pays them well while they are in Vienna—and will not permit them to touch him. He has had a large automobile standing in front of the hotel every day for six years. He pays $10 a day for the car and tips the chauffeur $2 a day. He has used the car just three times in six years.

I'm in that little barroom now. The bartender is an elderly man. His hair is gray and his face is very thin. He hops rather than walks.

"Your order, sir," he asks most politely.

"A cognac and seltzer," I reply. "You have no Perrier water here, have you?"

"No, sir," he returns. "Alas, those things are far too expensive now. The taxes make those waters almost prohibitive. Austria is not what it once was."

He returns with my drink and he stands beside me as I taste it.

"You have been to Vienna before?" he inquires.

"Yes," I return, "twenty years ago."

"Ah," he cries, "twenty years ago! Then you were here before the war. When Vienna was really Vienna. Ah, how fortunate you were to have seen those happy days! How very, very fortunate!"

"Twenty years ago," he went on, "we had what really belonged to us. Austria was Austria, then. A proud nation—and the greatest nation of them all. You remember it all, sir. You must. Once you saw the old Austria, you could never forget it.

"And now what have we? Taxes. Hunger. Trouble. Starvation. And on top of it all, taxes and more taxes. How can life be so cruel to a nation and a great King who never asked anything more than peace? Can you answer me that, sir? Can you?

"Where are all our finest possessions? Gone, sir, gone. Our beautiful Carlsbad, home of tranquility and loveliness, has gone to Czechoslovakia. Czechoslovakia! What is Italy? Whoever heard of Italy? Is it a nation? Are they people? Who knows? Yet they are in possession of our wonderful Fiume. Is that just? Is it right? Is there any sense to it?

"No, Austria is no longer the same as when you were here last. Vienna is no longer the same. But I am perhaps foolish to tell you all this. You have eyes. You have seen. Have you not, sir?"

I looked up at the man. I knew now that he was just a little crazy on this one subject. Yet—is crazy the right word? I smiled kindly.

"You've forgotten my seltzer," I reminded him.

He nodded. He walked away. He came back with the seltzer. He said no more . . .

'Hot From Harlem' In Final Week

As a result of its success at the floating night club, Joe Hiller is holding "Hot From Harlem" at the Show Boat for another week. This will be the last week as George Dewey Washington must return to Brown & Henderson's production "Strike Me Pink," and the Four Blazers are slated to reopen at the Cotton Club. There are two complete floor shows nightly at the Show Boat. The first begins at 11:30 p. m. Fletcher Henderson's dance music begins at 9 p. m.

Stanley Star Kate Smith Of Radio

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Gold-plated lyrics and hokum-plated drammer make "Hello Everybody," first picture starring Kate Smith, popular radio vocalist, whatever it may be in the way of entertainment. The photoplay opened in the Stanley yesterday. Whatever it may be depends upon the point of view. A thin trite story, in which several songs are not too dexterously introduced, possibly is all that any admirer of Kate Smith would desire, and certainly Kate is as sweet-voiced on the screen as she is on the airwaves.

It is all Kate Smith, and since Kate is eye-filling as well as ear-filling, it is more than probable that few will begrudge either the time or the admission stipend spent to see the happy, pleasant, soft-mannered Miss Smith making her screen debut. She makes a wholesome and lovable person of her screen character, who, by the way, bears her own name, and she sings about four songs, and the voice reproduction is most excellent.

The story—let's call it that, anyway—is designed especially not to get in the way of Kate's songs, so she early leaves the beloved farm and gets into a broadcasting studio, where much of the action takes place, and earns money enough to save the farm.

DUKES MEET WESTMINSTER

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Bluff Boxers Bolstered.
Early Test for Wright.
Gore's $2,500 Holdout.
Secret of Basket Shots.
Boxing Fans' Fairness.
Track Marks May Fall.

DUQUESNE'S TEAMS WIDELY SEPARATED

THOUGH PITT'S BASKETBALL and boxing teams perform in the same spot this afternoon, meeting Army at West Point, Duquesne University's squads in those two sports tonight will see action in widely separated places. While Coach Chick Davies sends his basketeers against Westminster's at Beaver Falls, Coach Joe Miller will match his leather pushers against Temple's at Philadelphia. Five wins over strong opposition, including Pitt, Carnegie and Geneva, have given the Duke passers a more favorable rating against Coach John Lawther's Titans, the only team to trip the Bluffites this season.

Carl Avington

And the fact that Carl Avington finally has filled the 175 pound gap in the boxing team improves Duquesne's chances of the locals against Temple. Avington packs a hard wallop and gave good accounts of himself in previous years. He became eligible again for boxing with the opening of the second semester on Thursday, and ought to prove a valuable addition to the Bluff forces. When the Duquesne-Carnegie meet was tied up, each side having won three bouts, the Dukes, lacking a light-heavyweight, have to forfeit because John Rooney, who was to have boxed in the 175-pound class, became ill. Avington plugs the hole in promising style.

THOUGH GLENN WRIGHT is one of the few Dodgers to express himself as satisfied with the terms he received, it is by no means assured that the former Pirate will be at shortstop for Max Carey's club regularly throughout the season.

There still is considerable doubt about Wright's underpinning. In order to get a line on Glenn's possibilities as early as possible, Carey will take him South with the first squad of Dodgers, and if Wright doesn't hold up well Gordon Slade will be groomed for the position unless a deal for a new shortstop can be put through.

WITH BABE RUTH drawing such a big salary that he is asked to accept a reduction of $25,000, another batting king of earlier years recalls with amazement the time when his own holdout was for only $2,500 for a full season's salary, just one-tenth of Ruth's cut.

The veteran is George Gore, hale and hearty though nearing 80. As a member of the Chicago club he led the National League in batting in 1880 with an average of .365. A year later he stole seven bases in one game, since equaled only by Billy Hamilton in 1894.

"IT'S AMAZING HOW times change," Gore remarked to Arch Ward. "Here is Ruth holding out for $65,000, and to think that A. G. Spalding said I was crazy when I held out for $2,500. And I didn't get it either. The original offer was increased from $1,200 to $1,900 and I was told that I could take it or leave it. I took it, receiving $200 in advance. Imagine a $2,500 holdout these days. A bad boy, perhaps, but not a player. Of course, we didn't draw the crowds that they draw now, but I can't help feeling amazed at the trend of affairs. I believe Ruth is worth all he can get as a gate attraction, but give me Lou Gehrig any day. Gehrig is the most valuable man in baseball today. He's worth two Ruths. He can hit like Ruth, backs up every play, and fights for victory all the way to the finish."

Fred Fitzsimmons

THE PROGRESS OF the Giants in getting their players in line has been almost as smooth as that made by the Pittsburgh club. Twenty-two men have signed, and eight of the 12 hurlers are safely under contract. The only holdout came in yesterday when Fred Fitzsimmons signed.

Officials of the New York club say the Fitzsimmons holdout never was serious, and deny the report that Fred once was offered to the Cardinals in an attempted deal for Pitcher Tex Carleton. No difficulty is expected in coming to terms with other players.

MUCH HAS BEEN said and written as to what baseball needs, but in the opinion of Judge Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, one thing has been overlooked. He says the game needs some talkies. You might think he ought to feel satisfied in that direction in having Art Shires on his own club, but the Judge means movies, with sound.

The Boston magnate points out that football has been carried home to the general public through the medium of several gripping talkies, but to date the baseball movies have not been good enough to make a wide, human, romantic appeal.

FLOOR EXPERTS DECLARE there is more to making a basketball shot than the average person realizes. In the East, Henry Meinhold, outstanding sharpshooter of the Crescent A. C., who threw 22 points in a recent game, is said to score in double figures so often because he throws a dead ball. Spin or english tends to pop a ball out of the rim even though it is well aimed. Dead balls have more than an even chance of going in, despite being a bit off line. Meinhold is said to have a softer shot than anybody else who has come along in late years. Johnny Beckman, the little veteran who is leading the Metropolitan Pro League right now, is rated the softest shooter ever to play in New York. Joe Brennan, who has a high rating among the pros, also throws a light ball.

PLAYERS WHO ARE dead shots in using a lot of english on the ball are held to be rarer even than soft ball throwers. Pete Reiher was about the last prominent one. English usually is associated with skill, but in the floor game, except under the basket, it is to be avoided.

That is why good players make all their foul shots underhand. There is less spin. The famous veteran, Nat Holman, now coaching City College, makes all his players shoot fouls underhand for this reason. Strangely, he could never learn to change his own awkward-looking overhand style. He was not a good foul shot.

SEAMAN WATSON is sold on the sportsmanship of the American boxing fans. He says that when he gets back to England he means to spike the view inspired by Phil Scott and others that a foreigner can't get an even break over here.

Gene Venzke

Watson had been tipped off before he left home to expect nothing but the worst of it from American fighters, fans and officials. He was agreeably surprised to be treated as if he were fighting in his own home town.

AT THE BIG Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden in New York tonight, the 10 individual and numerous relay events may develop into a record-breaking orgy. The first appearance on boards of Frank Wykoff, fastest human, who holds the 100-yard record of 9.4 seconds will be one feature. He is to meet Emmitt Toppino, Don Bennett, Ed. Siegel and Birchall Pierson. But the high spot possibly will be the Wanamaker mile with the greatest starting field in its history. The headliner will be Gene Venzke, holder of the world indoor record of 4:10. Venzke surprised the track world by failing to qualify for the Olympic Games after being the super-miler of the year, but he is said to be back in stride, and one of the greatest races of all time may be the outcome when he goes against an all-star field that includes Glenn Cunningham, holder of the American outdoor mark of 4:11.1; Eric Ny, of Sweden; Frank Crowley, of Manhattan College; Ray Conger, who won the Wanamaker three times; Henry Brocksmith, Carl Coan and Leo Lermond.

MIDWAY'S 'OLD MAN' EAGER TO GO WEST

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—A. A. Stagg, Sr., retired University of Chicago football coach, announced today that he has accepted a position as head football coach of The College of the Pacific, Stockton, Cal.

Stagg, who was retired as athletic director and coach under an automatic retirement rule at the age of 70, told of his decision to go to the Pacific Coast after a long conference with Dr. Tully C. Knoles, president of The College of the Pacific.

STAGG EXUBERANT

Despite his 70 years, Coach Stagg was exuberant today, declaring he was starting a new career in a small college, with ambition, enthusiasm and the will, which in his opinion, should be good for another 20 years. Stagg said:

"I'm going West and feel like I'm about 21 years old instead of 71. I'm ready to start another career and am as happy as can be."

The veteran coach, who had been in charge of University of Chicago athletics for 41 years, had been visibly depressed since last October when it was announced he would be retired under the university's 70-year retirement rule. But today, he acted like a college sophomore with his first varsity football letter.

TAKES CHARGE IN FALL

Stagg's automatic retirement at Chicago was set for June 30, and he planned to wind up his affairs here as soon as possible after that and leave for the Pacific Coast. He will be on his new job for the first drills of the fall football season.

When Stagg's retirement was announced, the university offered him a newly created post as advisor of intercollegiate athletics, but he rejected it with the declaration that he wanted to remain active in the football coaching world.

OFFICIALS OFFER RULE CHANGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—To help balance football in favor of the offensive side, the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Football Officials has put forward a recommendation that the team in possession of the ball be given an extra down—five downs instead of four—when inside either their own or the opposing 20-yard line.

This proposal, designed by the officials to remove what they described as a handicap for the offensive side in either the "torrid" or "frigid" zones, came as a surprise on the eve of the special winter meeting of the new coaches' committee on football rules, called by Chairman Lou Little, of Columbia, and added immediately to the debate over what, if anything, will be urged in the way of changes this year in the national gridiron code.

The officials' proposal was outlined by Ed Thorp, prominent New York official, on behalf of the Association's Rules Committee, consisting of Thorp, Al Farrier, of Dartmouth, and W. R. Crowley, of Bowdoin, president of the association.

Describing the "frigid zone" as that section of the field between a team's goal line and its own 20-yard line while that team is in possession of the ball, Thorp explained:

"It is frigid because when a team finds itself in that position, it is so limited in its choice of plays that it often kicks on the second down and is practically forced to kick on the third down. If given an extra play in each series of downs while in this zone, we believe that it would tend to remove that restriction, thereby encouraging and justifying the starting of a march."

COCHRAN WINS CUE CROWN

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Welker Cochran, dark haired, shiekish looking billiard star of San Francisco, today had a check for $8,000 tucked away in his wallet as a reward for winning the world three-cushion billiard championship last night, in his very first attempt to master the most difficult of all billiard games.

Cochran won the undisputed title by conquering red-haired Johnny Layton, of Sedalia, Mo., 10-times holder of the championship, 50 to 33, in 38 innings. Cochran swept through the tournament, losing only one of the nine games. Layton will play Jay Bozeman, of Vallejo, Cal., Monday in the playoff for second honors.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: TEMPLES OF HUMAN BONES—Liang-chow, which is in the province of Kansu, Northwestern China, was the scene of a series of bloody battles between the Chinese authorities and the Mohammedan rebels during the long Mohammedan Insurrection, which lasted 19 years (1855-1873). The bleached bones of friend and foe lay for many years on the scene of battle until the Chinese Governor of Kansu ordered them ground into powder, out of which the two Temples were erected to commemorate the fratricidal carnage. The bones of more than a million men are said to be contained in these structures.

CRACK SOCCER TEAMS MEET

By TOM BIRKS

Two game are carded this afternoon in the West Penn open soccer cup competition. At Leslie Park, German Sport and Springdale elevens are to clash, while the other battle finds Clan Douglas and Mt. Lebanon battling at the Westinghouse High School Stadium.

The Clansmen go into the game with a two-goal handicap. It is the second game of a home-and-home series. The Firemen won the first game, 3 to 1.

The West Penn cup committee met last evening at the usual headquarters. Victor Gurzinsy, of Coverdale, was suspended for 60 days, while A. Zeewan, of the Shannon Webers, drew a like sentence for causing referees to get into trouble.

SEEDED NET STARS VICTORS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Three top-seeded tennis players, headed by the veteran George M. Lott, of Chicago, have advanced easily through the quarter final round of the annual Pan-American tennis championships here.

Lott, playing in top form, yesterday defeated S. Jarvis Adams, of New York, 6-1, 6-4.

Bryan Grant, Jr., of Atlanta, defeated Gustavo Vollmer, of Cuba, 6-4, 7-5; Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, defeated Richard Covington, of Asheville, N. C., 6-1, 7-5, and Jay Cohn, of Chicago, defeated Carroll Turner, of Miami, 6-4, 6-1.

City Handball League contenders monopolize inter-club sport activity today, competition in the local squash racquets loop having lately terminated with Pittsburgh Golf Club succeeding P. A. A. on the Class A throne and Keystone A. C. supplanting the Winged Headers atop the B division.

District racqueters, however, refuse to slip from the picture and are slated for intra-mural play at the Golf Club, the K. A. C., and the P. A. A.

Y. M. H. A. STRONG

As has been the case since the start of the glove campaign, Lou Alman's Y. M. H. A. crews are making pace well to the fore of all rivals in both sections of the circuit. This afternoon's card calls upon the Bellefielders to entertain P. A. A. in the uppser sector and to visit the Winged Head in the lower portion of the wheel. Likelihood of hard-won victory for the Almanites is strong in the Class A battle, but the B affair, with first place the prize for decisive P. A. A. triumph, looms as a more doubtful proposition, though Y. M. H. A. already holds an impressive win over Capt. Eddie Roche's followers on the Y courts.

Keystone A. C. eases across the street to encounter Downtown Y. M. C. A. in class A contest that will break deadlock for second position. Class A representatives of the same organizations tangle at the Keystone in fray in which the visitors are distinctly favored.

Meanwhile the K. A. C. intra-mural class A squash tourney gets under way with 17 accomplished entrants listed for hostilities. The pairings:

Ralph Carson vs. Charles A. Woods, Jr.; D. J. Kennedy vs. Herbert G. Lytle; George Craik vs. D. J. Schneider; A. W. Schmidt vs. George C. (Chip) Kennedy; Theos Manos vs. J. O. Craig; James G. Fulton vs. Jean Caspar; H. A. Robinson vs. Walter Berg; J. E. McConnaughy vs. Charles A. Fagan, Jr.; W. D. Bickel vs. winner of Carson-Woods match.

P. G. C. PLAY OPENS

The Pittsburgh Golf Club matches the Keystone event with start of a handicap conclave in which some 32 entries are in the brackets. The action will last throughout the week and will call to the colors such stalwarts as McCook Reed, Joe Oliver, Charley and George Lockhart, Jim Ebbert, Graham McCargo and Barney Wolfe.

Dr. John O'Loughlin eliminated Graham McCargo, 16-17, 15-11, 15-13, 15-10, in the last of the quarter-final tussles of the P. A. A. intra-club racquet jousting, in progress since prior to the holidays. Semi-final fracases wherein Dr. Dave O'Loughlin takes on Dr. Whitey Stegeman and John O'Loughlin meets Paul Sullivan will be run off in the course of the coming week.

Cub Infielder Plans To Fly To Catalina

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Stanley Hack, young Chicago third baseman, plans to fly himself in his own newly purchased airplane to the Cubs' training camp at Catalina Island February 27. He announced the purchase of the ship yesterday.

Hack took his first flying lessons last October and qualified for a pilot's license in January. Then he bought himself a 225-horsepower plane, built to carry two passengers and the pilot, and said he would use it purely for the pleasure of flying.

BATTERS SET THREE MARKS

Sluggers in the Middle Atlantic Baseball League cracked a trio of records and tied a fourth during the 1932 campaign, according to official records released today.

Louis Chiozza, of Beckley, hung up two of the records when he went to bat 554 times and rapped out 187 hits. Joe Longnecker, of Charleston, laid down 41 sacrifices to better anything that previously had been recorded. Chiozza also tied the league high mark for being hit by pitched balls, stopping shoots from the pitcher on 14 occasions.

The following all-time batting records of the Middle Atlantic League, since its start in 1925, are based on participation in at least 75 championship games during the course of a season.

The records follow:

Best average—Medwick, Scottdale, 1930	.419
*Most runs batted in—Pritchard, Johnstown, 1931	126
Most games—Seghetti, Scottdale, 1930	150
Tyler, Scottdale, 1931	150
Most times at bat—Chiozza, Beckley, 1932	554
Most runs scored—Thomas, Johnstown, 1930	125

JIM CORBETT ILL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Jim Corbett is ill at his home in Bayside, L. I. The former heavyweight champion is suffering from a heart ailment and some concern has been felt because of his age. His condition, however, is not regarded as immediately critical.

LUCAS, JADICK DRAW

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, the junior welterweight champion, and Johnny Lucas, of Camden, N. J., fought a 10-round draw in the feature bout of a boxing show here last night.

LOCAL PASSERS SEEK REVENGE OVER TITANS

With revenge as a motif, the Duquesne Dukes tackle the only quintet able to defeat 'em this season—Westminster's towering Titans—in the Beaver Falls High School gymnasium this evening.

The contest is Westminster's home game, but rather than play it in New Wilmington, where the seating capacity is about 50 per cent of what it should be for such a game, the United Presbyterians shifted it to Beaver Falls, where the high school gym will accommodate more than 1,600.

TITANS UPSET DOPE

In the second game of the season, the Titans came to Pittsburgh and wrecked Duquesne's hopes of going through the campaign unbeaten—-nosing the locals out by a single point 25 to 24.

Since then things have been moving along in fine fashion for the Dukes, who have taken Pitt, Grove City, George Washington, Carnegie Tech and Geneva. Westminister has been beaten twice, bowing to Grove City, in two extra periods, and to Geneva.

Coach Chick Davies will start the same lineup tonight against the United Presbyterians that he employed so efficiently against Geneva here Tuesday. Brenner will be back in at center. Moore will play forward again, paired with Paul Birch and Feldman and Reiter will go at the guards.

While the basketballers are facing Westminster, the Duquesne boxers will see action in Philadelphia, where they'll engage Temple University's Owls in an Intercollegiate Conference match.

JACKETS VICTORS

GREENVILLE, Pa., Feb. 4.—Waynesburg College's Yellow Jackets of basketball walloped Thiel's Luther passers here last night in a Tri-State Conference tilt, 58 to 31, with Ufema, guard, and Janoski, center, leading the attack with 22 and 15 points, respectively. The lineup:

PANTHERS PLAY CADETS TODAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The University of Pittsburgh's speedy basketball team prepared today to move up the Hudson and take on the Army after a highly successful evening here against Fordham last night. The Golden Panthers walloped the Rams, 47 to 16, taking a 24-to-7 lead in the first half.

The Pitt passers were joined here this morning by the Panther boxers, who are to swap punches with the Cadets later in the day. Russ Ochsenhirt, guard of the floor team, arrived with the mittmen after being delayed a day because of examinations.

Exhibiting too much speed and a brace of individual performers of extreme brilliance in Capt. Don Smith and Claire Cribbs, the Panthers had little trouble in crashing the Ram defense. Cribbs led the Pitt attack with 14 points, scored on five field goals and four fouls. Smith tallied four field goals and Skippy Hughes five.

Fordham managed to hold the Panthers to a 9-to-5 count for the first 10 minutes of action, but after that it was all Pitt. The lineup:

Pitt.	G.	F.	Pts.	Fordham	G.	F.	Pts.
W. Hughes, f	3	0	10	Fleming, f	2	0	4
Smith, f	4	0	8	Rinaldi, f	1	0	2
Wilson, f	1	0	2	Curran, f	0	1	1
Cribbs, c	5	4	14	Williams, c	0	3	3
Bond, c	1	0	2	Donowsky, g	1	0	2
C. Hughes, g	1	0	4	Pingarron, g	2	0	4
Kuno, g	0	1	1
McCamant, g	2	0	4
Walnio, g	1	0	2
Totals	20	7	47	Totals	6	4	16

Score at half time—Pittsburgh, 24; Fordham, 7.

Personal fouls—Pittsburgh McCamant 2, W. Hughes 3, Walnio, Smith, Kuno, Fordham, Williams 3, Rinaldi 2, Pingarron 2, Pepper, Fleming, Donowski.

Referee—Dave Tobey, E. I. A. Umpire—Dick Meehan, E. I. A. Time of halves—20 minutes.

BARRY WOOD STARS

BALTIMORE, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Led by Barry Wood, former Harvard star athlete, the Green Spring Valley team won the first half season title of the Baltimore Amateur Hockey league by defeating the University of Maryland dental school, 4 to 2 last night. Playing a steady game, Wood scored one goal and assisted with two others.

AMATEURS SCORE 10 KNOCKOUTS IN A. M. A. TOURNEY

WILLOW CLUB BOXERS WIN FIVE BOUTS

By JESS CARVER

The punchers among the lightweights, welters and light-heavies entered in the annual junior A. M. A. championship boxing tournament, did their best to send the customers home early last night as the lads socked through the second evening of action. No fewer than 10 knockouts were recorded, five of them of the cleancut variety.

Tonight the second round will be completed in all classes. The semi-finals and finals held over until Monday night. Another packed house watched last night's action.

Willow Club boxers, who dominated the first night of contesting by sending six out of seven into the second round, found the going tougher last evening, but won five out of eight starts. The Superior A. C., Patton A. C., Aliquippa A. C., Y. M. H. A. and the Civic A. C. each advanced two men.

LYCEUM STAR HURT

Danny Ryan's Pittsburgh Lyceum team could do no better than win one out of three starts and lost a promising light-heavyweight, when Johnny Mucha suffered a fracture of the radius bone in his left arm and a complete dislocation of the wrist. He was battling Eddie Nichols, of the Superior A. C., a hard-hitting Negro hefty, and caught one of Eddie's right swings on the arm in the second round.

The quickest knockout of the evening was credited to Bill Hanna, of the Cody Club, who stopped Louis Indoff, of Belle Vernon, after just 53 seconds in the first round. Referee Shinton stopped the slaughter after Indoff had gone down twice.

Oil City presented a promising contender for 147-pound class honors in Jimmy Clarke, a hard-hitting Negro lad, who knocked out Mike Chalfa, of Canonsburg, in the second round. Bob Bennett, of the Patton A. C., hung it on Al Phillips, of the Willow Club, in the first round; Wendell Jackson, another Patton entry, put the quietus on Paul Miller, of the Lyceum, in the first heat; Henry Klema, of the Boylestein A. C., with Freddie himself in his corner, stopped Truber Harrison, and Don Schaeffer, of the Westinghouse Club, put out George Wilson, of the Willow Club, in the third round.

TUBBY MILLS LOSES

A favorite in the 175-pound class, Tubby Mills, of the Y. M. H. A., wilted in the third round after holding a lead in the first two and lost the decision to Lloyd Wolcott, of the Monongahela Valley A. C.

In a bout that was looked forward to with relish, but which turned out to be somewhat lacking in thrills, Romero Caldarelli, of Aliquippa, won the nod over Dom Buffalini, of Ambridge, at 135 pounds. Caldarelli caught the Ambridge lad as he came in with hard left hooks to the head and body that swayed the decision of both judges.

There are five boxers in the second round in the 112-pound class, four in the 118, seven in the 126, 11 in the 135, nine in the 147, four in the 160, and five in the 175. The Willow Club leads in the number of qualifiers, with two in the 112, three in the 118, three in the 135, and one each in the 147, 160 and 175-pound classes.

The summary:

135-POUND CLASS

Leo Mean, Willow Club, defeated Steve Rencho, Ukranian A. C., three rounds, decision.

Leo Weis, Willow Club, defeated Don Klingensmith, New Salem, three rounds, decision.

William Johnson, Superior A. C., defeated William Booth, Twenty-seventh Ward Club, three rounds, decision.

Don Schaeffer, Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg, knocked out George Wilson, Willow Club, three rounds. Time—1:58.

Wendell Jackson, Finleyville, knocked out Paul Miller, Pittsburgh Lyceum, first round. Time—1:58.

Frank Tonsic, Canonsburg, defeated Joe Brody, Linwood Club, three rounds, decision.

Frank Rickard, Linwood Club, defeated Al Russell, Uniontown, three rounds, decision.

Romeo Caldrelli, Aliquippa A. C., defeated Dom Buffalino, Ambridge A. C., three rounds, decision.

Al Hargi, Aliquippa A. C., defeated Johnny Ungerman, Willow Club, three rounds, decision.

Ray Cooper, Willow Club, defeated William Horne, Carnegie Library A. C., Homestead, three rounds, decision.

William Eley, New Salem, won from Paul Snyder, second round. Time—1:01.

115-POUND CLASS

Eddie Nicholas, Superior A. C., defeated Johnny Mucha, Pittsburgh Lyceum, technical knockout, second round. Time—50 seconds.

George Luppino, Willow Club, defeated Billy Morocco, Ambridge A. C., three rounds, decision.

George Buttner, New Salem, defeated Stokey Stoken, Valley View Club, technical knockout, second round. Time—1:43.

Lloyd Wolcott, Monongahela Valley A. C., Clairton, defeated Tubby Mills, Y. M. H. A., three rounds, decision.

Henry Klema, Boylestein A. C., knocked out Truber Harrison, unattached, third round. Time—42 seconds.

147-POUND CLASS

Tarran (Art) McGivern, Willow Club, defeated Eddie Roberts, Monongahela Valley A. C., Clairton, three rounds, decision.

Bob Bennett, Finleyville, knocked out Al Phillips, Willow Club, first round. Time—1:08.

Jimmy Clark, Oil City A. C., knocked out Mike Chalfa, Canonsburg, second round. Time—1:41.

Jimmy Campbell, Y. M. H. A., defeated Richard Ambrose, J. L. Thomas Club, three rounds, decision.

Jimmy O'Brien, Y. M. H. A., defeated Joe Thrip, Carnegie Library A. C., three rounds, decision.

Steve Kobesh, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Terry Moore, North Side, technical knockout, second round. Time—1:40.

Jack Eleks, Civic A. C., defeated Jack Pulley, Pittsburgh Lyceum, three rounds, decision.

William Hanna, Cody Club, defeated Louis Indoff, Belle Vernon, technical knockout, first round. Time—53 seconds.

Walter Wisbe, Civic A. C., defeated Ted Robinson, Oil City A. C., three rounds, decision.

Another Pirate in Fold—Piet Signs Contract

W. E. BENSWANGER — TONY PIET

FEW PIRATES NOT IN FOLD

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The Pirate home office today was just about all caught up with the important work in conjunction with putting a flag contender on the playing field. The Wagner tidings of the previous afternoon were followed yesterday by the signing of Second Baseman Tony Piet, who happens to be one of the most precious of the younger crop of diamond stars.

Although the officials of the team are reticent concerning contract matters, it is believed that the first string players, excepting perhaps a pitcher or two, are safely in the fold.

WAGNER DEAL APPLAUDED

Piet added his name to the signed list after a long conference with the three Pittsburgh officials—Bill Benswanger, Sam Watters and George Gibson. Tony had his own idea as to what he was worth to the team, but he conducted himself like a courteous gentleman through the various conferences and after he had affixed his signature he said he was tickled. Apparently the club bosses were generous with him despite the scarcity of money.

Messager continue to reach the club as a result of the signing of the Flying Dutchman. The felicitations have pleased Manager Gibson and his associates in no small manner. And apart from the sentimental side of the case, Gibby realizes that the acquisition of Honus means a lot to the club and the league in general.

Sometimes one is too close to a big subject to get the proper perspective. You must stand away from a masterpiece to appreciate its greatness; by the same token you will get a better measure on Wagner if you visit Cincinnati, New York or some of the other cities of the National League.

HONUS TO PERFORM

Many times each year this writer is sought by fans for information on Honus. The followers of the game in the various cities wish to see those bowlegs back on the field in the regalia of the Buccos. Their wish is to be granted. Moreover, the writers of the seven other towns of the National League will find a font of feature stories in the famous shortstop.

Although Honus is crowding 60, he still can do some tricks around the shortfield that cannot be matched by the youngster. Then, too, he can sock the ball all over the lot. So, he is due to put on a lot of specialties that will be cheered in the stands.

LUCAS REFUSES SALARY CUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Charles (Red) Lucas, work horse of the Cincinnati Reds' pitching staff, has balked at a $3,000 slash in the salary of $14,500 he was paid last season. Lucas, who pitched more complete games than any hurler in the National League in 1932, said he would confer with Owner Sidney Weil soon.

The New York Giants continue their dizzy pace in signing players. Fred Fitzsimmons, bulky pitcher who had evidenced some dissatisfaction with the terms the club offered him, signed on the dotted line yesterday.

Two players who figured in offseason trades signed with their new bosses. Mule Haas, bought along with Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes from the Philadelphia Athletics, has agreed to White Sox terms. Gus Dugas, outfielder, who figured in the three-cornered Giant-Pirate-Phillies trade, has signed a Philly contract. He played with the Pirates last year.

The Red Sox announced receipt of the signed contracts of Catcher Mervyn Shea and Pitcher Bob Weiland.

ACADEMY TRIO, PARKERS MEET

Meeting for the first time, the Shady Side Academy and South Park polo teams tonight are featured on the Pittsburgh Polo League card at Hunt Armory. When the opening gong brings together the rival contenders for the Charles Meurisse polo trophy, South Park will hold a handicap advantage of one goal.

The game will get under way at 8:45 o'clock. The lineup:

South Park.	Pos.	Shady Side.
Fisher	No. 1	Drake
W. Voltz	No. 2	McCahill
Ackerman	No. 3	Aaron

McGregor Re-elected Greenkeeper Head

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—John McGregor, of Chicago, has been re-elected president of the National Association of Golf Greenskeepers.

Other officers, all except one, re-elected, were: Vice president, W. J. Sanson, Toronto; secretary-treasurer, Fred Burkhardt, Cleveland; directors, John Anderson, West Orange, N. J.; Carl Bretzlaff, Indianapolis; M. E. Farnham, Philadelphia, and John Quaill, Cleveland; trustees, John Tessler, Sewickley, Pa.; Grange Alves, Cleveland and John Pirie, Chappaqua, N. Y. Pirie succeeds John Williamson, of Long Island.

CHAMPION TONY QUICK VICTOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Tony Canzoneri was in full cry after the leaders of the welterweight pack today.

The doughty little champion of the lightweights, lacking opposition in his own division, made his debut as a welterweight contender in Madison Square Garden last night and knocked out Billy Townsend, of Vancouver, in barely a minute of fighting in the first round of a 10-round match.

The crowd of 12,000 persons barely had settled back into their seats after the introductions when Canzoneri stabbed Townsend across the ring with his fast left and then unloosed a volley of right hand punches. The last, landing high up on the temple, sent the Vancouver youngster to the canvas and he stayed there as Referee Patsy Haley counted 10. The finish came in one minute and five seconds. Townsend failed to land a single blow.

Although the sudden ending of the match brought a loud chorus of boos from the spectators, ringside critics, including State Commissioner John J. Phelan, were convinced that the Canadian was the legitimate victim of three hard right hand punches.

PACKERS FAVORITES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The Green Bay Packers were classed as the favorites to defeat the Southern California all-star football team in the final game of a prolonged grid season at Wrigley Field here today.

Metcalfe to Face Irish Stars Tonight

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Ralph H. Metcalfe, Marquette University's Negro sprinting star, will make his first competitive appearance since the Olympic games tonight when the Marquette track team entertains Notre Dame in a dual meet.

In order to wear his school colors in the 1933 track debut, Metcalfe passed up an invitation to compete in the Millrose games in New York tonight.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The favorites, which came through the first half championship races in both the City League and the W. P. I. A. L., resumed where they left off as the second half races got under way yesterday and came through a heavy card without a single upset being recorded.

In the City League, the sectional leaders, South, in Section I and Perry, in Section II, both won. South nosed out Westinghouse, 28 to 26, after a hard-fought battle. Perry took over Carrick, 28 to 12.

SOUTH HILLS WINS

Other city circuit frays resulted in a win for South Hills over Langley, 25 to 20; for Fifth over Peabody, 35 to 19; for Allderdice over Connelley, 34 to 28, and for Allegheny over Vocational, 40 to 25.

Braddock, Ambridge, New Kensington, Scott, New Castle, Aliquippa, Duquesne, Ford City and Washington turned in victories in the W. P. I. A. L. Braddock walloped Turtle Creek, 46 to 13; Ambridge nosed out a surprisingly strong Freedom five, 25 to 23; Scott won over Edgewood, 30 to 17; New Castle tripped Rochester, 32 to 15; Aliquippa won from Midland, 27 to 15, Ford City dumped Apollo, 22 to 14; New Kensington laced Tarentum, 35 to 22 and Washington defeated Trinity, 23 to 14.

In other games, Waynesburg won over Carmichaels, 23 to 13; Leetsdale downed Ben Avon, 42 to 15; Freeport took Vandergrift, 29 to 28; Charleroi whipped Donora, 30 to 22; Burgettstown eked out a win over Findlay, 31 to 29; Hurst sank East Huntingdon, 33 to 17 and Duquesne defeated McKeesport, 30 to 19.

Two other strong W. P. I. A. L. contenders won in non-league starts. Rankin defeated Shady Side Academy, 27 to 12 and Homestead beat Uniontown, 28 to 19.

Baxter beat Arsenal, 18-15; Peabody took Fifth Avenue, 11-9; South won from Prospect, 26-10; Latimer defeated Rankin, 13-7; Overbrook upset Knoxville, 17-13 and Neville defeated Brentwood, 35-20 in junior high school clashes.

Tracy Cox Wins Over Joey Marcus

DETROIT, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Tracy Cox, of Indianapolis, rallied after a slow start last night to take a 10-round decision over Joey Marcus, of Pittsburgh.

His showing in the last three rounds earned the decision for Cox, who weighed 141¾ to Marcus' 138.

In the semi-final, fought after the main bout, Billy Wallace, 136¼, Cleveland defeated Jimmy Alvarado, 134¼, Detroit, in 10 rounds.

Hyatt Stars Again As Tulsa Triumphs

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—Tulsa moved easily along its undefeated way toward the Missouri Valley A. A. U. basketball championship by handing Kansas City a 37-to-19 lesson here last night. The Oklahomans were in front 15-11 at the half.

Charles Hyatt, fomer University of Pittsburgh star, and C. Larsen, a former Bethany College ace, tied for scoring honors, each adding 10 points to the Tulsa total.

TRACK STARS DUEL TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The flying feet of no fewer than 17 Olympians, not to mention national and sectional titleholders, will pound the big board saucer in Madison Square Garden tonight in the first of the major indoor track and field meets of the metropolitan season, the Millrose A. A. meet.

There are two foreign entries—Eric Ny, Swedish 1,500-meter champion, and Bert Pearson, of Canada, Dominion sprint king. The Americans entered include such luminaries as Gene Venzke, indoor mile record holder; Frank Wykoff and Emmett Toppino, sprinters; Jack Keller, hurdles; Charles Hornbostel, Ned Turner, Glenn Cunningham and Glen Dawson middle distance runners; Joe McCluskey and Henry Brocksmith in the longer distances, and George Spitz, indoor high jump champion and world record holder.

The Wanamaker Mile, one of the two events to be contested on a yardage basis, probably will carry the major interest with Venzke out to regain the laurels he lost last summer in the Olympic tryouts.

Unusual interest centers in the 50-meters sprint where Wykoff make his first start on the boards against such speedy youngsters as Toppino, Don Bennett, of Ohio State, Ed Siegel, the local sensation, who has not been defeated this year, Pearson, the Canadian Olympian, and the pick of the Eastern sprinters.

A DRAW—AND ALL IN FUN

MIDGET WOLGAST — JACKIE WILSON

Wolgast, flyweight champion of the world, and local Negro bantamweight, who engaged in a referee's draw at the Arena last night. Wolgast made little effort to fight and no damage was done, to the evident disgust of the patrons. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture of the handshake after the final bell. The "action" was almost as tame throughout.

WOLGAST GIVEN DRAW FOR STALLING

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

If your husband, or son, or father, or sweetheart went to the fights at the Arena, on the North Side, last night and hasn't returned home yet, don't worry. Just drop over and wake him up. He probably fell asleep during the course of the tamest bill the bugs have seen here all season. The only thing that kept many of the fans awake was constant booing and clapping of hands for action during the last two "fights," both of which were terrible plus.

The main bout saw Midget Wolgast, flyweight champion of the world, somewhat shopworn, do about a dollar and 10 cents' worth of fighting against Jackie Wilson, Homewood Negro bantamweight, and wind up with a referee's decision of a draw. Twice during the bout Referee Al Grayber went to his corner and warned him to cut out playing around and do some real fighting, and this official undoubtedly figured the Midget's disregard of his instructions in penalizing him with the draw.

VOTE THREE WAYS

One of the judges, Frank Brown, voted for Wilson, and the other one, Phil Scello, for Wolgast. Wolgast won easily on his experience, Wilson having a shade in only one round and holding his own in two others, although he tried earnestly enough and his opponent was not inclined to exert himself any more than he had to. Just a few times Wolgast opened up with a rally and stormed about the ring in a faint imitation of his manner of battling against Willie Davies and other opponents here. Either he has gone back a great distance or he didn't think the small crowd of last night worthy of a genuine exhibition.

There were no knockdowns, no damaging punches, and the amazing decision at the finish found few fans sufficiently interested to dispute it. Wolgast weighed 117¼ pounds and Wilson 121¼. The flyweight limit is 112.

SEMI-FINAL A FLOP

As bad as the main bout proved to be, the semi-final of eight rounds was worse. In it, Joey Speigal, Uniontown southpaw welterweight, pulled a fast one by starting out to box as a right-hander against Jacquette Elverillo, local Negro, and was dumped for nine with a left to the head near the bell ending the second round and then switched around. Shortly afterward, Elverillo injured his right hand and from then on all they lacked was waltz time music. The fans tried to supply this by giving them a raspberry tempo. Elverillo received the decision.

The work of Charley Burns, of St. Michaels, in defeating Claire Repole, of East Liverpool, O., in the second bout was the only redeeming feature of the show. He won all the way with a clever exhibition of boxing. Bill Nichy, North Side middleweight, knocked out Johnny Baylog, of Donora, in the fifth round of the opener, a right to the jaw ending the bout.

Between Rounds

Marty Gornick has just signed a three-year contract with Irish Kane and would like to celebrate the event by landing a match with Battling Ozzy Marty, who is 22 years old, has had 27 professional bouts, of which he has lost only four, following a career of some 100 battles as an amateur. He has engaged in five 10-rounders.

Sunny Jim McVey, Rankin Negro lightheavyweight, would like to get a bout with George Panka, the Homestead heavyweight.

Both Harry Dublinsky and Tony Falco will work out in the Motor Square Garden gym tomorrow afternoon for their windup engagement in the Garden ring, Monday night. Both have shown here before to advantage, and the winner of their meeting may be matched with Barney Ross for an early date.

STOCK MARKET PRICES TILT UPWARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—The stock market drifted idly in the early dealings today, small gains about offsetting minor declines.

United States Steel preferred and American Telephone slid off about a point. Air Reduction and Eastman gained substantial fractions. The rails were a shade lower, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Santa Fe losing a little. Delaware and Hudson tilted up slightly. United States Steel common and Harvester were down a small fraction, while similar gains were recorded by Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, Borden, Du Pont and Standard of New Jersey.

Although the financial district found little new in the overnight reports from industry which would influence investors to take an aggressive position in the stock market, there was considerable favorable comment in brokers' offices. Emphasis was laid on indications that liquidation which appeared in mid-week had failed to dislodge the majority of stocks more than a point or so from price levels which obtained at the beginning of the week.

Ability of the steel industry to continue its moderate recovery, despite the absence of large-scale buying orders from principal consuming industries, was also interpreted as an encouraging evidence.

The week-end trade reviews were in agreement that the slight step-up from the holiday low point of retail business was being held with tenacity. Dun's Review observed that "with the actual condition of business now better than sentiment, there has been a complete reversal of the situation a year ago, when sentiment overbalanced the record."

British sterling opened at $3.40 for London cables, up ¼ cent, and French francs at 3.90½ gained 1-16 point.

LONDON MINING STOCKS BOIL

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(AP.)—An amazing stock trading tumult developed at the market in Throgmorton street after the close of the stock exchange, last night.

An enormous crowd gathered to deal in the booming Kaffir or gold mine shares. For a time trading was impossible in the pandemonium, the noise of the excited traders being so great that no business could be done.

Some time elapsed before the crowd quieted. Such trading as finally was affected sent leading kaffirs to new high records. The present boom is attributable to increased profits made possible by South Africa's departure from the gold standard.

URGES WARNING AGAINST POOL OPERATIONS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Should responsible heads of corporations wave a red flag of warning when pools are manipulating their stocks unwarrantably?

Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, addressing himself to this this question, concludes:

"I have frequently heard it asked, why management at such a time does not frankly disclose its apprehensions and so dampen the speculative ardor before it is too late. Well, one answer is that an inflamed public would have paid no more attention to a pessimistic statement in 1928 or 1929 than a skeptical people now pay to an optimistic one. Both, in my judgment, are thoroughly ineffectual. Moreover, I do not believe that corporate management should make statements to the public at any time for the purpose of influencing the price of its company's shares. The business of management is to disclose the facts which faithfully reflect the company's condition. The valuation which the public may put on the shares of the company is outside its province. In fact, it has often been said, and with truth, that corporate managers, although familiar with the conditions of the corporation, are the poorest judges of the market value of the shares. For one reason, it is said, they are too close to the picture to see it in true perspective. So the market will accept their statement of condition but not their opinion of value."

Mr. Rukeyser

WARBURG CURE CITED

Mr. Young made this statement in the New Republic, in answer to a criticism of the operations during the boom of the Radio pool.

Though greatly respecting Mr. Young's judgment, I cannot wholly agree with his conclusions.

As for his first point, namely, that the public would not have heeded a warning, I am inclined to believe that many would have listened to one who possessed the authority and public acceptance of Mr. Young. Whether many would have listened or not, it would have been desirable for the responsible officers to have put themselves on record to the effect that they were not a party to the manipulation.

As to the second point, namely, that officers should not make statements intended to influence the price of their company's shares, I think Mr. Young has laid down a sound policy. But all too many corporate officials have interpreted this rule in a one-sided way. They were silent during overexploitation on the bull side, yet when the sharp correction came during the panic of October, 1929, they rushed into print in statements indicating that everything was "basically sound."

It must be recognized that the seeds for the panic were sown in the earlier period of irresponsible bull manipulation. As the late Paul M. Warburg suggestively said, the way to cure a depression is to sit on "the bulge."

HIDDEN DATA

Without attempting price fixing for their shares, corporate executives could be of service in disinterestedly warning against misinterpretation of data concerning the company.

Moreover, during the new era many of the largest companies were delinquent in furnishing data. They encouraged manipulation by failing to make revealing financial statements promptly. Many erred on the side of hiding earnings and assets, whereas others padded them. Belatedly the stock exchange has recognized these evils, and is now beginning to insist on audited reports which mean what they purport to say.

The stock exchange, in asking for better accounts, is fighting the investor's battle.

If corporation presidents in their current annual reports want to help the outside investor, they should in their remarks indicate clearly the extent to which assets have been written down to current conditions.

R. F. C. REPORTS YEAR'S LOANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation authorized total loans of all classes of $1,937,667,972 during the 11 months ended December 31. Funds actually advanced aggregated $1,524,747,139 and repayments totaled $300,023,234, leaving $1,224,723,904 outstanding.

Publication of the corporation's fourth quarterly report showed that so-called commercial and financial institutions received advances of $1,427,603,212 out of $1,623,704,844 authorized in the 11 months. Of these $299,907,777 was repaid, leaving $1,127,695,345 outstanding at the end of the year. During the fourth quarter of 1932 the corporation authorized 1,682 loans to commercial and financial borrowers who received aggregate advances of $214,843,326.

Aggregate loan authorizations of all types in the last quarter of last year totaled $388,746,263, of which $330,145,572 was disbursed and $104,219,783 repaid.

NEVADA COPPER DISTRIBUTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Directors of the Utah Copper Company have declared a special dividend of all the stock of Nevada Consolidated Copper Company owned by Utah, at the rate of one and three-tenths shares of Nevada for each share of Utah outstanding February 14, 1933. The dividend will be payable as soon after February 14 as necessary arrangements will permit.

As Kennecott owns over 98 per cent of Utah Copper stock outstanding it will, with this dividend, own directly over 87 per cent of Nevada.

The amount of stock going to minority stockholders of Utah Copper Company will be only about 32,600 shares.

STEEL OUTPUT CONTINUES TO GAIN

By B. E. V. LUTY

Production of steel ingots this week was at 17 to 18 per cent. There has been a continuous increase over the 13 per cent rate in the first week of the year. As December averaged 15 per cent, there is 15 to 20 per cent increase, which is in approximately the usual seasonal proportion, but amounts to little in actual tonnage. Output is now at a rate of about 12,000,000 tons a year.

There has been no increase in steel production for the automobile industry from a fortnight ago as shipments for Ford production were suspended on account of a strike. The rise that has occurred is impressive on account of the widespread character of the increased buying and is promising for the next few weeks, by way of further seasonal gain. Ordinarily March has been the high month in production, but in view of the very conservative policy long followed by all buyers, purely seasonal increase is expected to extend beyond the usual time.

Tubular goods, sheets and wire products showed little if any increase in January over December, while there were gains in tin plate, strips and the heavy rolled steel products, the gain in the last named being chiefly in the Chicago district, partly a reflection of increased requirements of the farm implement trade.

PIPE ORDERS LOOM

Fabricated structural steel is expected to run somewhat lighter this year than last, when shipments of the shops were in the neighborhood of 950,000 net tons, about 30 per cent of the record high, in 1929. Less public work is in prospect and there was little else last year.

Inquiries for some moderate tonnages of rails are expected within about a month, but inception of repairs to rolling stock on any substantial scale is not expected for several months.

Automobile production in December as officially reported was 109,542 cars and trucks, United States and Canada, making 1,431,544 for the year. January is estimated at little change from December and decidedly heavier production is predicted for March.

Normally, line pipe has been practically out of season until about April 1, but some business has been placed already and there are several live projects on the part of oil companies that can do their financing themselves.

PRICES UNSTEADY

The average guess in the steel trade was that the cut in the Steel Corporation's dividend would be less than was actually made, to 50 cents, and any substantial reduction was expected to be followed in time by salary reductions and a third wage reduction. An influence to postpone action is the recent unsteadiness of the steel price structure at several points, as it might be

DRIVE YIELDS $800 FOR COX

The Fathe. Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive has already brought over $800 in cash to the Father Cox unemployment relief fund, Father Cox said last night:

"This means more than words can express in carrying on the work we are trying to do. It not only means a lot financially, but the Sun-Telegraph has been particularly good in keeping the general public informed about our activities and this publicity has inspired many donations along other lines."

Manager Weiland, of the Rialto Theater, 220 Brownsville road, Mt. Oliver, announces that he has secured the successful talking picture "A Dangerous Affair," with Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, for the Sunday benefit show at his theater tomorrow. The doors will be open at 2 o'clock, the show will be continuous until 10 o'clock and food only will be accepted for tickets. Canned goods and standard package groceries are preferred. All of these donations will be given to Father Cox for distribution to destitute families.

The Sun-Telegraph-Father Cox subscription drive is still swinging along with fine results Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page gives Father Cox a liberal cash commission for his unemployment relief fund.

FIREMEN END BETHEL STRIFE

Strife among members of the Bethel Township Volunteer Fire department, which has been raging for the past four months, was apparently settled last night with the election of an entire new slate of officers.

Four volunteer firemen were suspended after they were alleged to have permitted a girl to ride on the borough's fire truck while it was driven through the streets of East Pittsburgh during a parade. They were fired, Fire Chief A. W. Devlin was reported as saying, for "conduct unbecoming members of the department." Later they were reinstated. Chief Devlin, too, was fired and reinstated.

The results of last night's election were:

Edward Schoepflin, president; Walter Williams, vice president; J. J. Shaw, secretary; L. C. Schoepflin, treasurer; Joseph Lepowski, chief; A. A. Allison, assistant chief; John Williams, captain; John Clark, first lieutenant, and Charles Beck, second lieutenant.

Only two of the 11 members of the board of directors were reelected.

How are you coming along on this one? Maybe the tip given today will help.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

So you are having trouble on Cipher No. 52? Five hundred (according to the headaches) telephone calls can't be wrong. Well, a response like that deserves a tip. So here it is.

Remember—the sequence of the alphabet has not been disturbed. Now that is tip enough. Go to work on it. It should be easy with that.

STORE OPENS NEW SECTION

A new optical department equipped with the most approved precision instruments for testing eyes has been opened by Frank & Seder. The department is under the management of Dr. Frank J. Cryns, graduate of the Pennsylvania State College of Optometry, who also has taken post-graduate work in Germany. The department is provided with a large reception room and modern examination room, in addition to a stock room and shop.

The beauty shop, completely remodeled, will open Monday. It is done in orchid, jade and black, all tile, with sound-proof booths. New reclining chairs and new permanent waving machines have been installed, and every provision made for rest and comfort during beauty treatments.

Retail Conference Held Satisfactory

A delegation of Pennsylvania retailers, headed by Arthur C. Kaufmann, regional vice president of the association, had returned from Harrisburg today after discussing the state sales tax with Gen. Edward Martin, state treasurer and Republican state chairman. The conference was held yesterday. At its conclusion Mr. Kaufmann stated that so far as the retailers were concerned, he considered their interview with Gen. Martin entirely satisfactory.

U. S. SUITS LOST BY EIGHT VETS

Claims made in Federal Court this week by eight war veterans to recover on War Risk Insurance policies have been denied either by jury decisions or verdicts directed by the court. The former soldiers claimed permanent disabilities due to injuries or illness contracted in military service.

In six cases the court directed non-suits and in the other two the jury verdicts were in favor of the government. The court in the non-suit cases held that they failed to establish lawful claims. There are 60 other cases of the same kind now pending in the court.

In defense of the suits the government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney W. J. Aiken.

Frees 16 Arrested In Eviction Riot

Sixteen men arrested during an eviction riot at 1343 Adams street were discharged by Magistrate Ray E. Schneider in North Side Police Station today, after he had reprimanded them. Two others, Carl Barrant, 38, of 1319 Reedsdale street, and Josph Kudis, 40, 1309 Franklin street, were turned over to Federal authorities for an investigation. Both are said to be aliens.

Magistrate Schneider in reprimanding Joseph and James Egan, who told the police they represented the Unemployed Council, advised them to consult with officers, or the landlords to settle or postpone evictions.

5 School Districts Here Receive Aid

Five school districts in Allegheny County were among 42 in the state sharing in the distribution of $122,000 in special aid by the State Council of Education to meet threatened deficits. They were East McKeesport, $5,000; Heidelberg, $2,000; Liberty, $3,000; Verona, $5,000, and Wilkins Township $3,500.

Your Income Tax

Deductible Taxes Include Levies on Real Estate

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the twelfth of a series of articles analyzing the Revenue Act of 1932 and discussing the problems of income tax payers.

A major share of the taxes assessed against individuals may be deducted in determining the amount of taxable income. Deductible taxes include levies on real estate and on personal property paid during 1932.

Assessments such as those for street paving and similar improvements are not deductible since they are interpreted to represent property improvements rathr than actual taxes. Federal income tax paid in previous years is not deductible.

Federal income taxes and state inheritance taxes may be deducted from gross income in computing the income tax for an estate. Customs duties paid by an individual on articles imported for his own use also are deductible.

Other minor taxes also are deductible, but it is necessary for a person to be able to show that he has kept a strict account of the amounts paid. These minor taxes include taxes on theater admissions, taxes on club dues as well as on electric light bills, on the rent of a safety deposit box, on checks drawn, on telephone conversations, radio messages, telegrams and cables.

License fees on automobiles, as well as fees for drivers licenses may be deducted, but the Pennsylvania state gasoline tax and the Federal gasoline tax are not allowable deductions, since they are assessed against dealers rather than against purchasers. The wording of laws imposing state gasoline taxes is important. The tax is deductible in some states where the law makes it clear that the tax is a levy against the purchaser of gasoline.

Postage is not considered to be a tax and is not deductible.

CHAPTER VI.

He was ready. The time had come to stock up for the great adventure. He had his lists—an immense variety of canned goods, bacon and hams and sausage, potatoes, onions, coffee, tea, beef extract, sugar, salt and pepper, a hundred items. A sand box for carrots, a metal box for hardtack. Plenty of lime juice. Much fruit among the canned things. Even some bottled water for emergencies. Cotton sailor suits, sweaters and oilskins for sea water. A compact medical kit, and by way of luxury, he installed a radio in the after cabin.

He had renamed the ketch. She was Sue now. That was his one concession.

And then, one morning, he came up to Boston and telephoned Mr. Hemingway. For weeks he'd known he'd have to do that. In an odd way, they'd been friends, even confidants. When he thought about it he felt a little like a deserter.

For more than a month there had been no letter from Sue. And he hadn't written since the day he bought the boat.

Mr. Hemingway wasn't at his office. His secretary was inclined to think he might be found at a certain hotel. His daughter was in town.

Slowly, with a nerveless hand, Charlie hung up the receiver. And then for all of five minutes he sat, limp, in the booth. Sue was in town. He hadn't even known she was in America. He went blindly out and walked the streets. People were staring at him. For a time he couldn't imagine why. But at last he caught it; he was muttering out loud. His face was hot; his mouth dry; his hands were shaking. He knew now why men do desperate things—oh, murder and all. Love again. Sheer madness. It drove you wild. And he'd thought he had got it under control. Control! Could you control a tornado?

It was a battle, Charlie walked and walked. Perhaps love was always a battle. He'd heard it so described. But there was fight in him. Those sea-going forebears of his had fought hundreds of battles. With tornadoes, at that, and not one of them had ever lost a ship. Doggedly, at last, he directed his steps toward the hotel. He'd face Sue.

Yes, she was registered. He sent up his name. Then he walked, hat in hand, about the luxurious lounge. He couldn't sit down. He couldn't sit still. But he was beginning to trust himself again. He wasn't going to be whipped.

Mr. Hemingway appeared. Looking years older. A gaunt man with a strained, unhappy face that lighted a little when he saw the familiar red head. There was strength in that young face. Strength, and freckles, and a new wind-bronzed color.

"Sue'll be down pretty soon," said Mr. Hemingway, listlessly. "You'll lunch with us?"

"Thanks," said Charlie. Yes, he'd have lunch with them.

FLIGHT PLANNED

They sat in a corner on chairs of mahogany with deep red cushions.

Mr. Hemingway cleared his throat. "I suppose you've seen the papers," he remarked, hesitatingly. There was a timorousness about him that struck Charlie with pity.

"No, Mr. Hemingway. I've hardly looked at them for weeks."

"You've been away?"

"Why . . . yes. I quit my job."

"Oh, you . . ."

"I've bought a boat."

"You don't say! Well, that's interesting."

"What was it about the papers?"

"Well . . . Sue's come over here to try the Atlantic flight."

There was a long silence.

Mr. Hemingway added, in that almost abject way: "Yes. With that aviator fellow. He's an Englishman."

"But not—not"—Charlie was stammering—"not now?"

"Yes. From here to Nova Scotia. And then across."

"But good Lord! It's September. There'll be storms. It's a bad time."

Mr. Hemingway spread his hands, helplessly. "She won't listen to me. She's of age. I don't know what I can do."

"Is Mrs. Hemingway here?"

"No. She's in Paris."

"Then Sue came over alone?"

"Yes." Mr. Hemingway was mumbling. "I suppose so." His fingers were playing restlessly with the arms of his chair. How old he looked! Gaunt and tired and mentally sick. "We've simply gone to smash, Charlie. It's pretty tough. After all these years. Pretty tough." His voice trailed off to a whisper. Suddenly Charlie broke out:

"Sue . . . ! she's going to . . . well, alone with that fellow . . ."

SEEMS UNNATURAL

Mr. Hemingway compressed his lips, and slowly nodded. There seemed to be a sort of fright in his badgered eyes. He looked furtively about, and then, impulsively, laid a skinny hand on the younger man's arm. "Charlie"—more of the truth was coming—"something has happened. She's a stranger to me. You'll see. Got the bit in her teeth. I'm afraid it has gone pretty far. I don't know what I can do. I'd give anything in the world if . . . oh, if you could only do something! Kidnap her! Knock some sense into her! She's worth saving, Charlie. She is! . . . Sh! Here she comes."

Charlie saw her stepping from the elevator. Slim, beautiful, dressed like all Paris is an exquisite gown and a little lilac hat. Rouged. Her lips heavily painted. She was fitting a cigaret into a long, jeweled holder. Charlie's brows drew together. She came toward them with a nonchalant grace.

"Well!"—the only natural thing about her was the musical, low-pitched voice—"this is a pleasant surprise, Charlie. Awfully nice of you to look in." She glanced at the jeweled watch on her wrist. "Let's go to luncheon, Dad. I'm starved. That sleeper was a perfect nightmare. I hardly closed my eyes."

No, even the voice wasn't wholly natural. There was a touch of accent. Something different. A new care in the enunciation of the words. Something faintly British. She had picked that up from the aviator fellow, of course. And she meant not to give him a chance to talk. He caught that. In the way she looked at her watch and then rushed them into the dining room.

When they were seated, looking over the menu and saying inconsequential things, Charlie studied her. It was a relief to find that he could do it so coolly. Or, if not coolly, with so measured a heat (there was a flame burning within him). She had just looked in on them from Europe. She was flying back shortly. Charlie thought, "It's like meeting an enemy. We're not saying anything we mean. We're all dodging things."

THE JUNIOR PATROL

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR COMIC CLUB

Today marked the fifth anniversary in which the members of the Arsenal, Plaza, Etna-Harris, Cameraphone, Belmar, Schenley, Enright, Rowland and Manor chapters of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Clubs were entertained by the stage shows directed by John Dreno.

Of course the big news of the day was the number of youngsters who turned out for the free show at the Enright. Every boy and girl who attended the Junior Komic Club meeting at the Enright this morning was a guest of Manager Frank Roberts. In addition to the regular Dreno unit consisting of Pal, that famous Belgium police dog, Kay Burke, the little girl with the big blue voice, and Rocco Plaza, the boy with the musical feet, the members and guests enjoyed a vaudeville show produced by Joseph P. Burke, and which lasted for an hour and 20 minutes.

This stage show featured such acts as an eight-piece harmonica orchestra, magic by that celebrated magician, "Harty;" banjo duet, violin solos, songs, dances both classical and eccentric by Miss Kathryn Burke and Miss Rita Lindenfelder, cartoons depicting "Popeye," famous character of the Sun-Telegraph Comic Pages. In fact, most of the characters who appeared in this show followed closely all the characters who appear every day with "Popeye." There was Gen. Bunzo, Olive Oil, The King, Popeye, Wimby, Rough-House, and all the others.

The Early Bird Gets the Worm Casts

Like an overcooked egg the golf season is ready to crack itself open. We saw the first robin of last year in a tree in Whackkabber county. He was singing as if his little arches would break.

All a golfer has to see is a loose bird in February. Then he knows that spring is here and divots must be replaced if you have to use a snow shovel.

We played our first game of 1933 yesterday in the mud. We teed up on loving cups. Naturally we played winter rules. You use your putter three strokes too late and your own judgment with your lead pencil.

The mud was about a foot deep in the fairways and the sand was soupy in the bunkers. The ball got a bounce shorter than one of Charley Chaplin's pies which have been correctly called revolt in the dessert.

There is a certain thrill of the pioneer and the explorer in golfing northwards in February. After a footless and trackless journey through the penalized rough you realize that the men who conquered this country sure bungled the job.

We have hundreds of last frontiers still left in the East. You can find them with a niblick and a compass. Just swing once and you are off on a travelogue that will make the lockerroom resound with your deeds of derring do. Whatever those things are.

The people of California and Florida little realize the wintry emotions of an all-year round golfer who is pent up in the last six hundred rows of Roxy's new theater. We long to get out into the open. And when we get there and slice into the woods we are still longing to get out into the open.

The green grass, the birds, the beers and the flowers are the breath of life to us. We have met many a splendid case of suspended animation in the thickets and the timber.

Be that as it may, which it always is, we still claim first honors for the 1933 season in New York State.

And some day you shall see our name enscribed in the annals of sports when they hand out prizes just for being there.

'Rotten Boroughs'

Pennsylvania Has Some in Its School System and Should Get Rid of Them.

One hundred years ago, through the Reform Act of 1832, England did away with an evil known as "rotten boroughs." "Rotten boroughs" were boroughs which had few voters, yet retained the privilege of sending a member to Parliament. Pennsylvania has some "rotten boroughs" in its public school system, but the Pennsylvania School Directors' Association has just voted against abolishing them.

*When the state's 2,600 school districts were or-*ganized roads were unpaved and children had to go to school on foot. It was unavoidable that schools should be to a large extent one-room affairs, with but one teacher for all the grades. And it was but logical that each district should have its own board of education and its own school officials. But there is no longer need for so many districts and so many school boards and so many school officials.

The one-room schools have been superseded in large measure by large consolidated schools. Allegheny County, for example, now has only 44 one-room schools, as against 138 in 1921. With good roads and buses children can now travel five miles to school more easily than they could go one mile previously. There are many districts which no longer maintain schools, but send the children to the schools of adjoining districts. But these "rotten boroughs" still maintain school boards and officials whose services might be dispensed with.

The State Department of Public Instruction has pointed out that an immediate saving of not less than $3,150,000 a year could be effected by putting all school districts with less than 10,000 population under county school boards. But the School Directors' Association, in convention at Harrisburg this week, would not hear of changing the size of the school districts in any way. Consolidation would cause some of them to lose their jobs.

Because of the selfishness of politicians England had to struggle long and hard to get rid of "rotten boroughs," and Pennsylvania for the same reason no doubt will also find it difficult to change the school district system. Every school district provides a few remunerative positions, and although the school directors themselves receive no pay, they are loath to surrender their office.

*The School Directors' Association is to be com-*mended, however, for opposing cuts in appropriations for educational purposes, and for opposing reductions in teachers' salaries which would bring their earnings under 80 per cent of the minimum wages to which they are entitled by the Edmonds Act. But the directors, while maintaining education at the highest level, should do what they can to ease the taxpayers' burden.

Apropos of the taxpayers' burden, the borough of Aspinwall is setting a good example in showing how to lighten it. The borough tax has just been reduced from 9½ to 8 mills. This makes a total reduction of 6 mills in the 10 years that Aspinwall has had a borough manager. It is proposed to reduce municipal expenses further by eliminating tax collection fees.

The Aspinwall Borough Council has passed a resolution asking the Legislature to pass a bill abolishing the paid position of tax collector and permitting borough employes to collect taxes. It is interesting to note in this connection that it costs $186,939 a year to collect the school taxes in the 104 school districts of Allegheny County outside of Pittsburgh, while Pittsburgh, with a larger amount of school taxes, pays only $37,306, or one-fifth as much, for the collection.

One of the most serious counts in the Citizens' Committee's indictment of the course of Senator James J. Coyne is his opposition to legislation which would reduce the excessive cost of tax collection. The County Delinquent Tax Collector's fees sometimes run over $100,000 a year, which could be saved for the county if the County Treasurer were allowed to do the work.

It has been charged, and so far as we know never denied, that the Delinquent Tax Collector's office is the "war chest" of the political organization with which Senator Coyne is identified. However that may be, the Senator's course in trying to preserve the office, even though the fees should be cut to five per cent, as he suggests, is inimical to the public welfare.

The Citizens' Committee has also scored in calling attention to Coyne's mischievous meddling with the public schools, and his hostility to sorely needed improvements in the election laws. Seldom has a public official been thus rebuked in Allegheny County. But it must be admitted that the provocation has been great.

It was only to be expected that with curtailment of industrial activity there would be a reduction in accidents in Pennsylvania. But there has been a gain in safety that goes far beyond expectations. The State Department of Labor and Industry reports there were 3.9 accidents in 1932 per 100 employes, as against 4.5 accidents per 100 employes in 1931. Accidents are still, of course, too numerous. Many could be avoided.

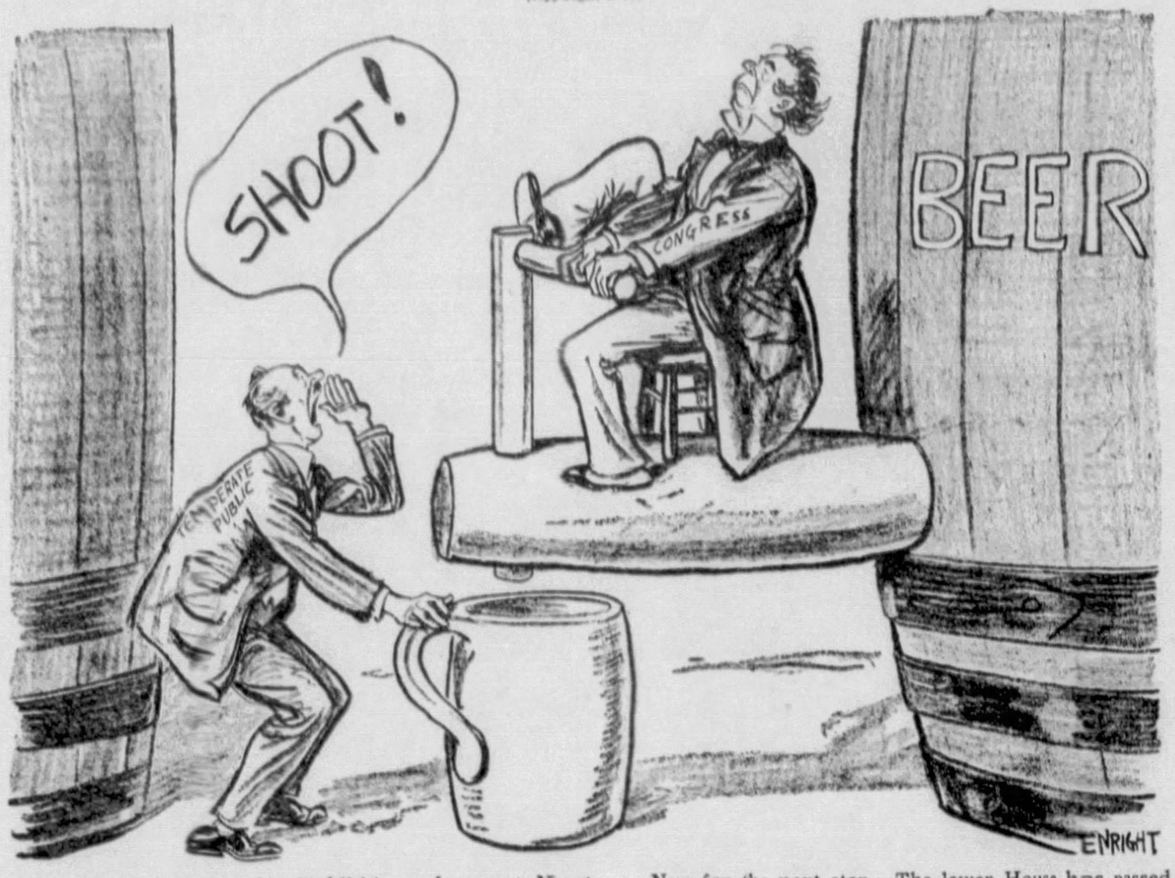
It is gratifying to note that the Pittsburgh Railways Company last year had the lowest accident rate in its history. Compared on a man-hour basis its accidents were 33 per cent lower in 1932 than in 1931 and were 38 per cent under the national average for electric railways. Other subsidiaries of the Philadelphia Company also gave a good account of themselves in accident prevention.

Do you remember the great flood of 1907, when the Monongahela and Allegheny overflowed their banks and put 1,600 acres of land downtown and on the North Side and South Side under water? A panoramic photograph of the inundated section will appear in the Gravure Section of tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. It will help you to appreciate the importance of President-elect Roosevelt's flood control program.

Prof. Rene Thevenin, the distinguished French scientist, explains how the tremendous and hostile forces of Nature may be controlled and made useful to mankind, in an article in the American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement to the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Another absorbing article in the Weekly reviews the evidence which suggests that Mme. Stalin, who died recently, was poisoned by drinking wine intended for her husband, the Russian dictator.

Waiting at the Spigot

(Copyright, 1933.)



A million dollars less for Prohibition enforcement. No more Government money to be spent in speakeasies. No more wire tapping.

Thus Congress, in reducing its appropriation for the Volstead Act, declares against dry-law snooping.

Now for the next step. The lower House has passed a Beer Bill. Two Senate committees have approved it.

Let Congress speed the Beer Bill along. Give the people a temperance beverage, instead of outlaw liquor, and put some needed revenue into the Federal Treasury, instead of pouring it into the bootleggers' pockets.

Explode Bombs Abroad

We have Home-Grown Bombs Enough.

A BOMB EXPLODED IN THE HOUSE OF Mr. Di Silvestro, of Philadelphia, killed his wife, injured four children and their governess.

Police say Di Silvestro, who happened to be absent, was disliked because he believes in Mussolini's government. Those that bombed him do NOT believe in it.

It is necessary to urge upon all in America that they avoid as far as possible any bombing based on differences of political opinion.

Great Britain has always made political refugees welcome, no matter what their opinions were, and it has always been understood that such refugees would refrain from assassinating British rulers or causing other trouble.

THE REFUGEES HAVE LIVED UP TO THAT. This country is patient about its home gangster bombings, but would soon become impatient about explosions based on foreign politics, with unpleasant consequences for the bombers.

For instance, if the Di Silvestro bombers were caught they would surely be sent to the electric chair, no matter how many there might be of them.

WITH GOVERNMENT, NATIONAL OR LOCAL, the idea seems to be to pile the extra load on income or on the automobile, or preferably both.

New York state wants more money and the Governor suggests a bigger tax on gasoline, which means on AUTOMOBILE USE, bringing the state tax up to 4 cents a gallon. Gasoline used to sell for 6 cents in the days when it was used chiefly to clean type in newspaper offices.

Income taxes also will be increased in New York.

Congress renews the national tax on gasoline. Individual states put on all the traffic will bear, and more.

RAILROADS THAT HAVE NOT KEPT UP WITH the times, "big railroad men" competing with each other in steadily increasing weight of engines and rolling stock generally, instead of competing with the automobile in light equipment and high speed, demand that the automobile industry be crippled to help railroads.

This as though the old stage coach owners had demanded that railroad speed be limited to four miles an hour in order not to beat the four-horse team.

The railroads should and must be helped, being absolutely essential to the nation's welfare.

But that should be accomplished without attacking the automobile industry in which the United States has outdistanced the world, creating in good times jobs for 4,000,000 workers. Railroads are important, automobiles are important with their 25,000,000 owners.

EMPLOYERS IN DENMARK PLANNED A 20 PER cent wage cut, with a lockout of 100,000 employes to prove their earnestness, and a big strike was coming. Thereupon the old Danish premier, a Socialist, forbids strikes, lockouts, wage reductions, and demands a law extending contracts to February, 1934.

No strike for the moment, and no lockouts.

Let us, by all means, abhor Socialists, if that is the correct thing. But let us not ignore the fact that the old Socialist premier of Denmark knows how to help men at work.

Marry-Go-Round

Love-Artists and Artisans

Somehow, an attractive man never can understand that, while a woman may admire him as a work of art, she may have no more vital interest in kissing him than she would in kissing the statue of the Apollo Belvidere.

* * *

The modern young couple appear to enter matrimony as they do the theater; the first thing they do is to look around for the nearest exit.

One reason for so many shattered romances is the woman's insistence upon detailed "explanations." Because, while the average man may be an artist at lying, he is only an artisan at explaining.

* * *

A husband, like bootleg liquor, is easy to get, if you know how; but the trouble, in these days, is that you never know what you're really GETTING until it's too late.

* * *

A gay Lothario should never get married. He may manage to live down his "past," but a wife is always bound to cramp his future.

* * *

The average matrimonial drama would make a bigger hit and have a longer run if the leading man would not so quickly forget all the lines that went over big with the leading lady, during the little rehearsal called "courtship."

A man has been known to give a woman up because she was "too good for him"—but never to relinquish a fascinating little vamp because she was too bad for him.

* * *

Before marriage, a man goes seeking a woman who will be "different" from all other women: after marriage, he sometimes thinks that he would be happy to find almost any woman different from HER.

* * *

When a girl tells a man he "mustn't say such things" to her, the only point that seems to impress him is whether or not she keeps on listening.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Put Forth Your Hand.

Put forth your hand with confidence.
Thus only life is met;
So clasp whatever good may come
And fear no far regret!

All song, all beauty are for you,
Why doubt, why hesitate?
Go forward to the joy that waits,
Triumphant and elate.

Turn not from one bright hope or dream
Whose silver echoes ring;
But make your life a garden for
Each bloom, each bird of spring!

Put forth your hand and take your share
Of universal good;
Why should life be, except that God
At last be understood?

Weeks ago, I attended Cecil B. DeMille's "The Sign of the Cross." The picture has gone the rounds and this is too late to be construed as a puff. After the performance, I sought DeMille, who was in the balcony. I found him inquiring of shop girls, stenographers and others, their reactions. He wanted to find out for himself. That's how successes are born!

Dana, on the old Sun, read every line of type in his paper the next day. A bright phrase, to him, was "a trout leaping to fly," and he hooked it with a pencil-ring and then penned the author a note of praise. He knew nothing was so stimulating to writing men as flattery. This was the chief reason for the Sun being, at the time, the best written paper in the world.

* * *

There was a writer on the Sun—as I recall, and likely a pseudonym, it was Franklin Files—who was a particularly bright ray in the effulgence. Sunday nights, he went to some blood and thunder Bowery drama and handled it as an art critic would a newly discovered Matisse. He scorned the villain in majestic verbiage, dripping soothing rhetoric for the heroine, and so on. It was travesty at top-pitch.

* * *

Arnold Bennett, in the second volume of his Journal, swirls a cape to Pirie MacDonald, who photographed him on an American visit. MacDonald has been focusing celebrities at $100 a sitting for years. It struck me, the debacle must have slowed up such a calling. So I dropped around. He was as busy as ever and has been throughout the depression. Not even a world cataclysm stops human vanity, it seems.

* * *

Another story of the old Sun comes to me. It was during the reign of Boss Lord's son, Kenneth, as city editor. He had a penchant for employing small-sized men. One day Keats Speed, the managing editor, bantered with: "Why don't you hire a big one once in a while?" A few days later Lord spiraled a gangling, square-toed, six-foot joskin—all knuckles and teeth—to the throne. "I just lassoed this out in the brush," he explained. And thus was launched the journalistic career of Frazier (Spike) Hunt, of Alexis, Ill.

* * *

At a Cartier avenue window, a damask-cheeked chorus girl stood, bright-eyed, before a glittering jeweled bracelet. A passing Don Juan, in a lush vein, called to her: "It's yours for the asking, baby!" To which she sniffed: "But look what would go with it!"

From a restaurateur's magazine: "Judging by his articles on food, McIntyre will eat anything put before him."

Not everything. Only the sliced eggs off spinach, for instance.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

IS DOMESTIC SERVICE, FOR AN EDUCATED AMERICAN GIRL, "WORSE THAN STARVATION?"

IS A GIRL "BRANDED" IF SHE ACCEPTS A POSITION IN A KITCHEN?

ARE WEALTHY AMERICAN HOUSEWIVES SO STUPID AND HEARTLESS THAT THE GIRL WHO WORKS FOR THEM MUST ENDURE SWEATSHOP CONDITIONS?

AND IF YOU WERE SUCH A GIRL, WOULD YOU "RATHER DIE THAN BE A SERVANT?"

Lucille started it. Her story is the story of thousands of other refined, intelligent girls who have been thrown out of work by our economic crisis. Perhaps it is YOUR story, or the story of your sweetheart or daughter.

IF IT WERE, WHAT ADVICE WOULD YOU GIVE?

Lucille is 35, alone in the world, with no resources save the money she earns from day to day.

Hitherto, neither her loneliness nor the menace of poverty and old age have bothered her much. She was clever at her work as a private secretary, and liked it. Like any normal girl, she would have preferred marriage, but the chance didn't come. So she built what seemed to be a satisfactory substitute—a pretty apartment, a small but nice circle of friends who shared her interest in music, art and books. Time passed pleasantly. She was content.

Then into her life, as into millions of others, crashed the Depression. The good job, which had lasted for years, went. Other jobs, increasingly unsatisfactory, succeeded it. Now there's no job at all. For months she has lived on her savings. They're nearly gone. Suddenly she realizes that she is penniless, homeless, getting old. She's terrified!

Isn't there any means of escape? Yes, there's one. She has been offered a position as household servant.

Now, in itself, housework has no terror for Lucille. She's tidy, quick, a good cook—likes the mechanism of home making. She would have loved her own home. But how would she fit into another woman's home? Her friends are ready with the answer.

"You'll be treated like a slave!" they cry in horror. "It will kill your pride. No American woman knows how to treat a maid decently. Domestic service is worse than a sweatshop.

"You'll have no privacy; no control over your hours. You'll have to sleep in a room where you wouldn't house a dog. They'll make you eat at a separate table, finishing up the scraps.

"You'll have to give up everything you've come to love—music, art, happy evenings with your friends. If we want to visit you, we'll have to see you in the kitchen.

"You'll be branded, Lucille! Don't do it! You'd better starve. Take ANY other job, no matter how little it pays, or how hard you have to work; but don't go into domestic service!"

Thirty friends have been asked for their opinions—30 working women who have been "out on their own" for years and are not afraid of any hardship. Yet, without one dissenting vote, that is their verdict.

IS IT A JUST VERDICT?

Thousands of frantic girls would like to know, for they, too, are facing the alternative of housework or starvation.

If YOU were one of those girls, what would your answer be?

Or if you have already been forced to do the thing which Lucille dreads, what has been your experience?

WERE YOU REGARDED AS AN EQUAL BY THE FAMILY FOR WHOM YOU WORK?

OR WERE YOU TREATED AS A SLAVE—CONDEMNED TO A SWEATSHOP LIFE—HOUSED AS YOU "WOULDN'T HOUSE A DOG"?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may be slipping morally and in other ways.

At first you did not overstep the bounds you know are right.

But as time passed your infractions became more serious, didn't they?

Isn't your sense of right and wrong becoming impaired or "more elastic?"

Actions that at first shocked you, now don't affect you at all.

Your ideals have descended so far that they have little to do in controlling your actions in wrong doing.

It is an easy matter to quiet conscience once this has been done.

You don't have to be told in what way you are doing wrong—you know.

Have you ever thought of your ultimate destination?

Oh, you have sense enough to quit in time, have you?

You say you won't reach a dangerous point.

Jails are crowded by those who thought they were smart enough to thwart the forces sent out to stop them.

They were confident that all loop-holes of evidence were closed.

You have the same opinion, but you would better stop before it is too late.

The fates of those behind the bars should show you how frail were their plans.

Text for Today Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.—John, xiv:6.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Thomas Cook, pastor, Second Primitive Methodist Church, Arlington Heights.)

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Who wrote:

1. "When lovely woman stoops to folly
   And finds too late that men betray?"
2. "If ladies be but young and fair
   They have the gift to know it?"
3. "For men must work and women must weep?"
4. "Many hands make light work?"
5. "Flow gently sweet Afton, among thy green braes Flow gently, I'll sing thee a song in thy praise?"

Match correctly:

6. "The Bohemian Girl"	Verdi.
7. "Il Trovatore"	Borodin.
8. "Fidelio"	Moussorgsky.
9. "Boris Godounoff"	Balfe.
10. "Prince Igor"	Beethoven.

Fill each blank:

11. Igneous rocks appear to have been formed by the action of ————.
12. Diamonds are remarkable for their extreme ————.
13. Hibernation is the state of animals that ————.
14. ———— was the hero of the Battle of Thermopylae.
15. Scott's "Ivanhoe" is laid in the England of King ————.

Answers to today's tests:

1. Goldsmith. "The Vicar of Wakefield." 2. Shakespeare. "As You Like It." 3. Kingsley. "Three Fishers." 4. William Patten. "Expedition into Scotland." 5. Burns. "Flow Gently." 6. Balfe. 7. Verdi. 8. Beethoven. 9. Moussorgsky. 10. Borodin. 11. Fire or intense heat. 12. Hardness. 13. Sleep throughout winter. 14. Leonidas. 15. Richard I.

TRAGEDY AND JOY

By Winifred Black

We were talking about our friend who has just lost her eldest son—my good old friend and I.

I could hardly bear to think of it.

"Poor thing," I said, "her heart is broken. She idolized that boy, and he was just beginning to be a great comfort to her.

"She's had such a lot of trouble anyhow, and the boy seemed to be a kind of recompense, and now he's gone and she'll have to stagger on through life alone. Isn't it terrible?"

"It seems so," said my good old friend.

Something in the tone of my friend's voice made me impatient. Now she's going to say it's all for the best and talk about resignation and all that sort of thing. The easiest kind of talk in the world when you're speaking of someone else's trouble, I thought.

"Seems," I said. "I think it's pretty real myself."

"Oh, yes," said my good old friend, "it is terribly real and very hard to bear now, but in a few years it will be a great joy to her—this death of her only son."

"A joy!" I echoed. "What on earth do you mean?"

My good old friend leaned forward in her chair, and put her kind hand on my arm.

"Don't you remember," she said, "my two children and my husband—I lost them all. It took me years to get over the tragedy of the whole thing.

"But now," said my old friend, "it is different.

"I was going up the hill, you know, and I kept looking back down over the valley where I used to live and picturing my quiet home and my two laughing children and my dear husband and it made me feel so lonely and forlorn.

"I've reached the top of the hill now and I'm looking forward—and not back.

"I've stopped thinking how they used to look—the children when they came running home from school with their tales of the teacher and the other youngsters and their demands for cookies and doughnuts, and where were the skates?—and who broke that strap?—and would there be time to get someplace and back before dinner?

"I think of them all the time now; but I wonder how they will look when they see me coming down the hill—will they be there to meet me, or will someone have to send a message to them? Do they know that I'm almost ready to come to them now? Are they glad? Shall I know them when I see them, or will they be grown and changed?

"Alone?—never again.

"Those days are gone—those lonesome days and nights of agony and tears.

"I've passed the top of the hill now and I'm on my way down to peace and happiness, and oh, I'm so glad my children went on before me.

"I will say good morning, now, and not goodby."

And I know that my good old friend meant every word she said, for her tired face was serene, and there was a light of great hope in her eyes.

Isn't It So?

Listening to cold facts makes some people hot.

A crank has a better chance of having a statue erected in his honor than a man who is normal.

Some motorists think they are "killing time" by speeding over the highway.

Sometimes opportunity departs so quickly after knocking that it may be mistaken for a hit-and-run driver.
